Disputed Work

Workmen for Missouri Public Service Co. were interrupted in their efforts to cut down a tree at Fourth and Quincy Thursday afternoon when residents in the area protested the action. After discussions between the residents, the company and Mayor Jones, the rest of the tree was left standing. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Missouri Public Service Co. has again come under fire from city residents for what one of them called "unnecessary" cutting and trimming of trees along city rights-of-way.

Thursday morning MPS workmen began to cut a tree down near the intersection of Fourth and Quincy, at the owner's request, in order to clear power lines.

Mrs. Barbara Schulz, 1004 West Fourth, and Mrs. Judith Berenyi, 501 South Barrett, said they felt that it was not necessary to cut the tree down completely and asked workmen to stop until they could contact Bill Hiatt, district engineer for MPS.

Hiatt advised the women that permission had been obtained from the owner to cut the tree, but the two women said they felt the same results could be obtained by "trimming selectively" around the wires.

According to Mrs. Schulz, Hiatt told the women that "as long as property owners continue to give permission to cut the trees, Missouri Public Service will continue to do so."

Mrs. Berenyi said that Hiatt cited several safety reasons for cutting "as many trees as we can," including limbs falling on children, a child climbing a tree and getting into the wiring, and the possibility of a limb falling and damaging the wires.

"We want Missouri Public Service to keep the city safe," said Mrs. Schulz, "but we feel that they can do it just as well with selective trimming. I don't consider what they're doing here a public service."

The two women said the city should pass an ordinance to protect trees. Under the ordinance, no tree would be subject to removal without the approval of the City Council.

Mrs. Berenyi told The Democrat-Capital Friday morning that she had been in contact with James Stevens, vice-president in charge of public relations with Missouri Public Service in Kansas City. According to Mrs. Berenyi, Stevens said that "he was under the impression that there was no longer any tree cutting in Sedalia" and was "surprised" that such work was being done. "He said he intended to look into it," said Mrs. Berenyi.

The two women contacted Mayor Jerry Jones Thursday afternoon and told him of their concern. Their talk was followed by a telephone conversation between Jones and Hiatt.

"I asked Hiatt not to cut the entire tree down," Jones said. Jones, referring to the tree at Fourth and Quincy, "I felt that MPS could accomplish the same results by just trimming. Hiatt agreed with my request."

"I don't want to be unfair to Missouri Public Service," said Jones, "but I think that the people's concern for the trees is

O'Brien Said Main Target Of Watergate Planners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The disgrace and removal of the Democratic party's most experienced professional was the real goal of the Nixon campaign planners who planned the Watergate raid, Senate investigators have been told.

In testimony that linked one former official after another to the Watergate wiretapping and its coverup, Jeb Stuart Magruder said final approval for the espionage plan that all involved knew to be illegal came from John N. Mitchell, then attorney general.

The target, Magruder said, was Lawrence F. O'Brien, then the Democratic national chairman and a foe much-feared for his political expertise. The idea, he said, was to gain information that would discredit O'Brien and thus the Democrats.

Confessing publicly to conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury, and protected from prosecution by a grant of immunity, Magruder said he had relayed details of the espionage plan to the office of the President's chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman.

President Nixon probably didn't know about it but it was possible that Haldeman did, Magruder said in testimony Thursday, three days short of the first anniversary of the Watergate arrests.

Mitchell, then the campaign director, was involved in concocting a series of lies to prevent disclosures that all involved feared would result in Nixon's election defeat, Magruder said.

Magruder, former White House aide and deputy director under Mitchell of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, said he told Mitchell this spring he had decided he must tell the truth.

Mitchell has always firmly denied any participation in Watergate. Magruder testified Mitchell told him he would not change his story of complete innocence.

"He indicated to me that he would not be able to go that way and he would have to go the other way," Magruder said of Mitchell.

Magruder's was the first first-hand testimony linking high former officials of the Nixon administration to the Watergate and its coverup.

One of those he said was periodically kept up to date on Watergate progress was Gordon Strachan, a White House aide who served Haldeman, Nixon's principal aide, as liaison with the election committee.

Magruder said Strachan was kept informed at regular intervals as the intelligence budget was pared from the $1 million G. Gordon Liddy wanted to a proposed $500,000 and finally approved by Mitchell himself at the $250,000 level.

The decision was made without much enthusiasm, after much haggling over its costs, and without any real expectation of startling results, Magruder testified.

Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., the committee's vice chairman, described it as "a decision that is going to affect history that was made in almost a casual way."

It was learned from Senate sources

Thursday that Strachan has informed the committee that if he is granted immunity for his testimony he will say Haldeman knew of the coverup "from the beginning."

Haldeman has denied such knowledge. Magruder said he could not testify with certainty on the extent of Haldeman's awareness of Watergate operations or the cover story that was invented to hide them.

In other Watergate developments, the White House confirmed that a secret list of unnamed contributors to the Nixon campaign was not destroyed as previously reported, but is being held by Rose Mary Woods, the President's personal secretary.

And Sen. George McGovern, a landslide loser to Nixon last November, said Thursday that "the election results would have been vastly different" if the American people had known about the Watergate coverup.

Metropolitan Traffic Controls Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency proposed today traffic control plans for 13 metropolitan areas. It said the controls could force all automobiles off the streets of Los Angeles by 1977 and cut driving in northern New Jersey more than 60 per cent.

Acting EPA Administrator Robert W. Fri said he would ask Congress to consider extending the Clean Air deadlines for areas so severely affected, giving them more time to meet the standards.

"I am not sure these are the results that Congress intended," Fri said.

Fri approved a New York State plan including a variety of traffic controls for New York City and proposed plans with traffic controls of varying severity for the following metropolitan areas:

Los Angeles, Boston, Minneapolis-St. Paul, the New York and Philadelphia metro regions of New Jersey, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Houston, San Antonio, Dallas, and El Paso, Tex.; Rochester, N. Y.; and Springfield, Mo.

The controls ranged from requirements for inspection and maintenance of vehicles to keep their polluting emissions down to such strict measures as gasoline rationing and even partial bans on vehicle use in the downtown areas.

The New York City plan, now approved by EPA includes:

—Vehicle inspection and maintenance.
—A "selective ban" on taxi cruising, inspection of taxis three times a year, and equipment of taxis with antipollution equipment required in California on 1975 vehicles.

—Reductions of parking space in Manhattan plus strict enforcement of traffic and parking regulations.

—Retrofitting of catalytic antipollution devices on heavy-duty vehicles.

—Restricting deliveries to hours outside the usual work day.

—Exclusive bus lanes, improved transit service, and voluntary staggering of working hours.

—And imposition of tolls on all East River and Harlem River Bridges.

U.S., France, NATO To Restudy Relations

COPENHAGEN (AP) — The United States, France and their North Atlantic allies agreed today to restudy the relations among them in the light of events of recent years.

U.S. officials hope this could lead to a new statement of principles, something like the "new Atlantic charter" proposed by Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's security adviser.

The study is to be made by the permanent representatives at the Brussels headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The 15 ministers reaffirmed the basic NATO principles, but noted that changes in international affairs made it necessary to now review their relationship "in a spirit of solidarity and by a common effort."

With French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert standing aside, the other 14 affirmed the right of members to bring up for discussion international balance of payments problems resulting from defense spending.

That gave some satisfaction to the United States, which had asked NATO governments to do something about the $1.5 billion annual cost in foreign currency of keeping 300,000 U.S. troops in Europe.

All 15 representatives said their countries are ready to begin on July 3 the first phase of the conference in Helsinki on European security and cooperation.

Jobert stood aside again when the others expressed their satisfaction with the preparations for a conference on mutual force reductions in Europe.

The 14 said they expect the force reduction talks to start in October as previously agreed.

The Soviets want to hold off until later.

Cambodian Cease-fire Is Hinted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger, hinting at the existence of a private understanding on Cambodia, says there might be a cease-fire in that country in "the next few weeks."

This cautious prediction was made to newsmen about the same time Thursday that the Senate was ignoring Kissinger's plea for more time by approving, 67 to 15, a bill that would ban all American military activity in Cambodia and the rest of Indochina.

The presidential adviser did not comment directly on the Senate vote, which still is subject to consideration by a House-Senate conference committee. But he said negotiations under way on Cambodia should have "an opportunity to mature."

This was similar to the "finite amount of time" he requested in asking members of Congress not to force an end to U.S. bombing in Cambodia.

But he was vague in discussing what he meant. Talking in terms of evolutionary development and impetus flowing from other events, Kissinger said of Cambodia: "It is our belief the communique (signed in Paris Wednesday to implement the Vietnam cease-fire) will make a positive contribution, and that events over the next few weeks will give life to that hope."

New Vietnam Cease-fire Gets Off To Shaky Start

SAIGON (AP) — Fire from rockets, artillery, mortars and guns got Vietnam's new cease-fire off to a shaky start today, and there was no progress reported in implementing any of the 14 points of the Henry A. Kissinger-Le Duc Tho communique.

Fighting and U.S. air strikes continued in Cambodia, and the two-party Joint Military Commission that Kissinger and Tho designated to put a true peace into effect seemed in no hurry to go about its task.

After a two-hour meeting in which rhetoric dominated, the Saigon and Viet Cong chief representatives to the commission adjourned until next week. There was no arrangement for the commanders of opposing armed forces to meet at noon Saturday at places of direct contact to avert hostilities. This was the time specified in the communique signed in Paris Wednesday by the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

The Foreign Ministry also confirmed that the political talks in Paris between Saigon and the Viet Cong aimed at signing an agreement on internal matters within 45 days had been postponed for two weeks. It said the Viet Cong had agreed to the delay, cited technical reasons for it, but did not elaborate.

An agreement on political matters was another of the 14 points in the Kissinger-Tho communique. The deadline was 45 days from the time of signing, or July 28.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the Saigon command, said there had been 21 violations of the new cease-fire during the first four hours. It went into effect at noon Saigon time.

Most of the violations involved shelling attacks and small patrol clashes, Hien said. This was due in part to the fact that the battlefield commanders of the opposing forces have never met face-to-face. Both the original Vietnam truce agreement, signed Jan. 27, and the 14-point communique stipulated they should meet. Hien left the impression there would be no agreement on the meeting of battlefield commanders until the shooting had stopped.

The earlier 4½-month truce brought more bloodshed than peace with over 60,000 casualties reported on both sides by the Saigon command.

But it was far too soon to tell whether the new cease-fire would be effective over the long run. Saigon sources however, were pessimistic.

The Saigon command reported an upsurge in fighting in the six hours preceding the cease-fire, claiming 58 violations by the Communist side, half of them in the Mekong Delta.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the command, said this was the highest number for a similar period since the original cease-fire went into effect Jan. 28.

Hien said it appeared that the Communist side made a last ditch effort to consolidate its positions just prior to the second cease-fire.

Committee Hears Final City Budget Requests

The city budget hearings were completed Thursday night as the finance committee heard the budget requests of four departments.

The committee heard budget presentations from the Park Board; David Schick, parking meter supervisor; Floyd McFarland, sexton at Crown Hill Cemetery; and Bill Hall, director of economic development.

Combining the requests of these departments and those heard earlier in the week, the committee established a tentative total budget of $2,847,599, which does not include a 5 per cent monetary reserve. Final budget figures are to be compiled by City Clerk Ralph Dedrick by the second council meeting in July, according to state and city law.

Mayor Jerry Jones said the city's expected revenue of $3,384,774 during the next fiscal year would provide a surplus of nearly $450,000.

Jones told councilmen attending about plans for the surplus funds. These included improving the Civil Defense system in the city, road work, bond retirement, and improving the sanitary sewer system, as well as renovation of Convention Hall.

The mayor said the funds would be deposited on interest until spent. He estimated the city could collect $20,000 to 25,000 in interest on the money.

Schick told the committee he would like to hire another employee in the near future to work with an employee considering retirement in August. He also requested funds to hire a second person to work as a meter inspector and maintenance man.

Schick, asked for funds to purchase a radio system for the parking department's scooters. He explained his crew often spots cars whose owners might be subject to arrest. He said radio contact with the police station would provide for more efficient arrests since scooters are not the

Sudanese Trial Postponed

CAIRO (AP) — A magistrate's hearing for eight defendants in the Black September killing of the American ambassador to Khartoum and two other diplomats has been postponed indefinitely, informed sources said today.

The hearing was scheduled to begin this weekend in Khartoum, the Sudanese capital. The delay was granted to permit selection of a team of defense attorneys, sources in the Sudanese capital said.

The postponement caught diplomats and newsmen by surprise.

On Thursday night a senior Sudanese official in Khartoum said the hearings—to determine whether a trial should be held—were to begin Sunday.

The Cairo press reported today that 22 Sudanese lawyers would defend the eight accused.

Lawyers from other Arab bar associations had previously expressed a desire to defend the men, but Sudanese law requires that members of the Sudanese bar association plead cases before Sudanese courts.

Foreigners may be permitted to act as advisers to the defense.

It is known that the Khartoum government has been under considerable pressure to delay the trial indefinitely because of its potentially explosive political nature.

The eight Palestinians are accused of killing U.S. Ambassador Cleo Noel; Noel's charge d'affaires, G. Curtis Moore; and Belgian Charge Guy Eid in the basement of the Saudi Arabian Embassy in Khartoum.

Protestants Eligible?

Catholic Bishops Differ Over Communion

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — May a Protestant partake of the Lord's Supper in a Roman Catholic worship service? In the United States, the circumstances in which it is officially approved depend on where you are.

This is the implication of different guidelines on the matter issued by Catholic bishops in two different areas.

In the diocese of Superior, Wis., Bishop George A. Hammes says Protestants on request may receive holy communion in Catholic churches in certain situations, such as at a funeral of a Catholic relative, at a Protestant-Catholic marriage, or at the baptism or first communion of a child of a mixed marriage.

"This is another step along the road to unity among those who believe in Christ," he says.

However, in St. Paul-Minneapolis, Minn., Archbishop Leo C. Byrne says Protestants are not to share Catholic communion on such occasions, and that intercommunion must await fuller agreement on beliefs.

"External unity without the internal accord in faith is rightly considered a dishonest unity," he says.

The diocese of Richmond, Va., is preparing guidelines on the matter, reportedly similar to those by Bishop Hammes, and other dioceses probably eventually will do so.

The variations in the official approaches to the matter so far come at a time when there also are widespread variations in practice, along with considerable sharing of communion in Protestant-Catholic action groups.

Archbishop Byrne observed that "there are some priests and ministers who encourage the practice of sharing sacramental communion." Bishop Hammes says that it's simply happening in many cases.

It "occurs more often in our large city parishes, but I know it to exist even in smaller parishes," he says.

Because of this situation, and increasing questions about it, the bishops spelled out their instructions.

Archbishop Byrne said: "Until further agreement in eucharistic belief is reached, Protestants and Catholics ought not to share sacramental communion which is meant to signify and effect the unity of the mystical body."

Bishop Hammes said there has been "a gradual convergence" in belief about holy communion by Catholics and non-Catholics, and many non-Catholics share Catholic belief in the "real presence of Christ" in communion.

Although joint theological talks have produced some general agreements about the observance, particularly between Catholics, Episcopalians and Lutherans, the churches have authorized no mutual pacts of intercommunion.

However, Catholics and most Protestant churches do accept each other's baptisms.

Archbishop Byrne says, "We have a long way to go from our sacramental unity in baptism to the unity signified and effected by the eucharist."

He says only in cases of "urgent necessity," such as when a non-Catholic is in a situation of suffering or danger, can't receive communion in his own church and shares Catholic belief in union with bishop and Pope, should he be permitted to share Catholic communion.

However, Bishop Hammes said Vatican instructions on the matter cited "other cases of such urgent necessity" beyond the critical situations.

He says Pope Paul listed four basic prerequisites for other Christians to receive Catholic communion, namely that they request it, believe in Christ's "real presence" in it, have "serious spiritual need," and cannot for a period have recourse to their own church.

Subject to those conditions, Bishop Hammes authorized priests in his diocese to give communion to other Christians requesting it when confined in a hospital or rest home, at a Catholic funeral of a relative, at a mixed marriage, or in baptism or first communion of a child of a mixed marriage.

Noting that Jesus, in instituting the Last Supper, prayed for unity of his followers that "they all may be one," Bishop Hammes added:

"In the diocese of Superior we are taking another step towards the realization of this prayer of the Savior."

Tax Study Funding Is Announced

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARRENSBURG — A $1,600 grant has been awarded the Show-Me Regional Planning Commission here to conduct a study of mobile home regulations and the assessment of both real and personal property on mobile homes and mobile home parks in a three-county area.

The commission serves Johnson, Pettis and Lafayette Counties. In a prepared news release, the commission said the study was "requested by governmental units and school districts" in the region. However, The Democrat-Capital learned that the commission was informed on the state level that funds could be obtained if a "study of value" could be drawn up.

A spokesman for the commission said the mobile home study plan was submitted to the state and accepted for funding.

The grant will be used to employ a summer intern — a graduate student in the field of business administration, accounting or economics — to make comparison assessments of individual mobile homes and single family residences, mobile home parks and apartments.

The object is to determine if individual mobile homes or parks generate as much tax revenue as conventional dwellings, it was reported. The summer intern will work with the planning staff of the Show-Me Regional Planning Commission to complete the project. "We wanted to find something that involved more than just filing papers," one spokesman for the commission said.

New Charter For Bank Is Refused

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state banking Board has refused to grant a new charter for the Mark Twain Bank in Cape Girardeau.

The board reversed its April 12 decision after it was appealed.

State Finance Commissioner William Kostman said Thursday he had received notice of the board's action. Larry Woods, acting board chairman, was unavailable and other board members would not comment.

Three banks—Farmers and Merchants Bank and Cape State Bank in Cape Girardeau and Cape County Savings Bank in Jackson—filed objections, saying a new bank was not needed and that it would adversely affect their business.

Two other banks in the area, First National Bank of Cape Girardeau and Jackson Exchange Bank, filed no objections.

The application was filed by Mark Twain Bancshares of St. Louis.

Program Speaker

The Rev. Robert Kessler, pastor of Community Churches at Houstonia and Sedalia, will be the featured speaker next week on the KDRO "Morning Devotions" program. The program is aired Monday through Friday at 8:45 a.m.

Receives Probation Following Break-In

Nicholas J. Domingue, 1617 South Sneed, was placed on three years probation Thursday in Pettis County Circuit Court after pleading guilty to charges of burglary and stealing.

Domingue, 18, had originally pleaded innocent in the incident but changed his plea Thursday and was given two two-year terms in the State Department of Corrections which were to be served concurrently. The court then sustained the defendant's application for probation.

Domingue was involved in the Feb. 27 break-in at McMullin's Radio and TV Supply, Smithton, where several television sets, radios and tape players were stolen. The value of the merchandise was reported at $1,198.28.

Trees

well founded. I don't like to see drastic tree-trimming myself, but at the same time I realize the Missouri Public Service has some very definite objectives and things they have to do."

According to Jones, he will meet "within the next two or three weeks" with MPS and the Environmental Quality Commission to discuss the problem. Jones said that they could not meet sooner because "Walter Savio (district manager of MPS) is on vacation and I'm sure he would want to be included in this."

Following Thursday afternoon's incident, MPS workmen returned to the area and trimmed two more trees on Quincy.

Mrs. Schulz said that "they did a good job on those trees Thursday, they didn't look bad, but they came back this morning (Friday) and chopped them up worse."

Michel Skaggs, 923 West Fourth, the owner of the two trees, said he requested MPS to trim the trees. He said he felt the high limbs were interfering with the power lines and one of the limbs was overhanging dangerously. He said he was "very satisfied" with the work MPS did on the trees.

Requests

best means to transport suspects to the police station. Schick said his crew is commissioned to make arrests like the regular police force.

The committee denied funds for installation of the radio system, the cost of which was estimated at $1,374. It was agreed to add one additional employee to the parking department as soon as possible at a salary of about $1,000 for the first two months of work.

The Park Board's salary request of nearly $108,000 was about $30,000 above the 1972 figure. Much of this increase can be traced to the board's plan to hire a recreational director in the near future, a secretary for the director, and other departmental work.

The director's salary was estimated at $12,000 and the secretary's at $5,000.

Also contributing to the increased budget request was an advertising allotment of $2,110, more than double the past year's amount. Ben Pummill, a Park Board member, told the committee, "you have to do quite a bit of advertising to notify the people" of new programs. The park department is currently expanding its recreational programs.

The Park Board requested nearly double the amount of funds for gas and oil for the coming fiscal year. Superintendent Jack Coutts told the committee he expected the park's rate on bulk gasoline to rise from 21 to 32 cents a gallon in the near future.

Also included in the Park Board's request were major amounts of road and parking lot resurfacing in both Liberty and Centennial Parks.

The committee also decided to allot about $90,000 to the park department, which will be combined with the department's expected revenue of around $105,000, according to City Clerk Ralph Dedrick.

Hall gave the committee a revised budget that was some $12,500 less than his original request of $53,145. "I feel the department can live realistically with these changes," he said. Among the items Hall cut was an advertising budget. It was reduced by $2,000 from the original $8,000.

Hall said the upcoming move to the new Municipal Building would help reduce costs for his department, as leased space and separate telephone bills would no longer be of concern.

After the hearings, the committee made several tentative decisions concerning requests. Among the action was a decision to reduce Hall's appto allowance to $3,000 from about $4,500 he requested.

The committee's Thursday night decisions were tentative and will be analyzed by Dedrick before final approval is given.

Major Proposals Object Of Final Day of Session

BULLETIN

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House today approved a "circuit breaker" bill to grant tax relief to the elderly.

The bill, designed to help break the spiral of rising costs to persons on fixed incomes, would allow those with incomes of $7,000 or less to subtract from their tax returns an amount arrived at through a special formula.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's lawmakers came to the capitol for the final day of the 1973 regular session today faced with last-minute negotiations over half a dozen major proposals.

They adjourn at midnight.

Awaiting final action upon agreement of joint conference committees were bills to implement two constitutional amendments—reorganization of state government and tax relief for the elderly.

Also stalled in conference were measures to reinstate the death penalty, allow 18-year-olds the right to buy and consume liquor, regulation of Blue Cross and Blue Shield health insurance plans and set up a $7.3 million program to educate mentally and physically handicapped children.

Legislators will be trying into the night for recognition to get action on their bills.

One Man Injured In Highway Crash

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LINCOLN — A Neosho man suffered injuries and another man was issued a summons for careless and imprudent driving in connection with an accident on Highway 65 about one mile south of the south junction of 65 and 52, at 5:40 p.m. Thursday.

According to the highway patrol, a 1972 Ford truck driven north by Paul Krause, 23, Aurora, skidded sideways into the path of an International tractor-trailer unit driven by Edward E. Doughton, 33, of Neosho.

The patrol said the tractor-trailer rig struck the Krause vehicle forcing it into a bridge. Krause was given a ticket for careless and imprudent driving, according to the patrol. Doughton was treated and released at Bothwell Hospital, Sedalia.

About 100 remain on the Senate and House calendars.

Also waiting for a decision by a conference committee was a bill to remove the limit of 200 legislative employees and increase legislators' pay. The Senate rejected, 17-13, Thursday, an attempt to raise the salaries from $8,400 to $10,800 a year.

Both houses favor different formulas on the tax relief bill and the main argument was how to help out the persons over 65 in the $3,000-$5,000 income range.

House members have opposed a reorganization bill, accepted by the Senate, because of advice and consent provisions and merit system.

The House favors giving the 13 department directors autonomy to name their division heads without Senate consent.

The Senate opposed allowing 18-year-olds to buy liquor, and the House was in favor. The question of when to put the program into effect was the hangup on the bill for handicapped children, which would require a census to find out how many there are.

Missouri is the only state that doesn't regulate Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

Another question mark facing the Senate is confirmation of the adjutant general, Charles M. Kiefner and Edwin Pruitt, a retired Army major from St. Louis, as chairman of the Human Rights Commission.

Monett Woman's Zoning Proposal Gains Approval

The City Planning and Zoning Commission met Thursday evening and approved a proposal to rezone a section of land near Sedalia Junior High to be used for a proposed nursing home.

A 406 by 370 foot tract of land at 2292 South Marvin will be rezoned as an apartment house district. The former classification was R-1, or first dwelling house district.

Mrs. Stella Bolles, Monett, Mo., will attempt to build a 76-unit, one story nursing home on the site. Mrs. Bolles said she owns a nursing home in Monett and is a state licensed administrator.

Present at the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Swords, 700 East 24th, who inquired as to how much land would be rezoned and to express their opinion that close proximity to the junior high would create noise problems for a nursing home.

Man Completes Part of Sentence

Willie J. Spencer, 22, state of Alabama, was released from the Pettis County jail Thursday after serving 7½ months of a one-year sentence on a charge of tampering with a motor vehicle without the owner's permission.

Spencer's sentence was suspended by Pettis County Circuit Court Judge Frank Meyer on a recommendation from the prosecuting attorney's office. It was reported Spencer had obtained a job in Florida and had displayed good behavior during his jail term.

Spencer was sentenced in Circuit Court here Jan. 18 on a charge that he stole an automobile Nov. 28 from the 300 block of West Main. He was arrested Nov. 29 by Dallas County authorities at Buffalo, Mo.

Change of Venue Allowed in Case

A change of venue to Henry County Circuit Court was granted Wednesday in Pettis County Circuit Court to Stephen Joseph Williams, 21, Grand Forks, N. D., formerly of Sedalia. Williams is charged with the sale of drugs.

Williams and five other persons were arrested last October in connection with a lengthy narcotics investigation by local, state and federal officials.

Williams is charged with selling 107 amphetamine pills to E. L. Porter, a special undercover investigator for the State Highway Patrol, on Jan. 7, 1972.

A Thursday hearing date for Williams' case had been previously set.

Motel Rent Is Avoided By Men

Ted W. Gauert, manager of the Sedalia Motel, West Highway 50, told Sedalia Police early Friday morning that two men had left the motel without paying a bill for three days.

Gauert told police the two left early Friday morning after he had asked them to be quiet. According to police, the room was rented to a Bailey J. Perkins, Sapulpa, Okla.

Police Friday morning recovered a car that was reported stolen Thursday by D. M. Scott, 1622 West 18th. The car, a 1962 Buick, was recovered at 2015 South Grand after it had been reported stolen in Gravois Mills.

Respond To Call

The Sedalia Fire Department answered a call at 1:20 p.m. Thursday at 200 South Missouri where trash was being burned in an alley and had set fire to a power pole. No other damage was reported by officials.

According to police reports, Gina Cochran, 319 North Osage, ran across the Skaggs' parking lot, north across Highway 50 and continued on north near the Parkhurst Manufacturing Co. before being apprehended.

Police indicated the woman had to be handcuffed while being returned to the police station. Formal charges had not been filed as of 1 p.m. Friday.

County Roads Surveyed By Commissioners

The Pettis County commissioners of the State Highway Department Friday took a first-hand look at county roads which might be added to the state highway system.

Under a state-proposed 10-year plan, county commissioners throughout the state have been asked to draw up a priority list of roads that should be maintained by the state instead of the counties.

Western District Judge John Bluhm said the list should be completed Monday.

The Highway Department has announced that state take-over of any present county roads would have to be approved by the department.

Accompanying the commissioners Friday morning was Eastern District Judge E. L. Birdsong and County Engineer Ed Hall. Commissioners attending the meeting were James Higgins, Houstonia; Kalo Monsees and Frank Van Dyke, both of Smithton.

By-Laws Changed By United Way; Chairmen Named

The Sedalia-Pettis County United Fund, Inc., officially amended its constitution and by-laws to change its name to Sedalia-Pettis County United Way, Inc., Friday during a regular meeting at Bothwell Hotel.

"There are presently about 250 local chapters across the country making this change," said Mrs. Delores Gerlecz, director. The local chapter initially changed its name in February and Friday's action made it official.

The local chapter also adopted the nationwide theme "Thanks To You It's Working." The kick-off date for this year's drive is Sept. 15.

New division chairmen for the 1973-74 campaign year are Dr. John Owens, professional; Robert Woolery, industrial; Danny McCue and Dave Wiedeman, business; Lacy Belt, government; Marion Keens and Wayne Isgriggs, residential; and Fred Huhman, county.

A meeting of the chairmen and executive committee has been set for Wednesday to plan activities for this year's campaign. The 1973-74 goal is $96,000.

Unusual Accident Results in Suit

A $1,849.94 damage suit was filed Thursday in Pettis County Circuit Court by Steel and Pipe Supply Co., Manhattan, Kan., against Clifford Danielson of Danielson Mobile Homes and Marquis D. Smith, 211 South Grand.

The suit contends that a truck driven by an employee of the pipe company was involved in an accident with a truck owned by Danielson Mobile Homes and driven by Smith on Jan. 5, 1972, about a mile east of Ottaville on Highway 50.

The petition alleges that the truck Smith was driving was towing another vehicle, which broke away from Smith's truck and struck a following truck driven by the employee of the pipe company.

The plaintiff contends that the reasonable market value of the truck decreased from $16,724.95 to $15,178.64 after the accident. The plaintiff also says that loss of the vehicle's services for 17 days resulted in another loss of $400.53.

Policewomen Lack Physical Strength

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A San Francisco experiment with patrolwomen may be discontinued soon because they just can't handle the physical aspects of the job, a police official says.

The alternative is a change in the Civil Service entrance requirements "to give us bigger, stronger patrolwomen," said George Eimil, the city's police personnel director.

"When things get down to the nitty gritty, where physical strength is required, men officers feel a man officer is needed," Capt. Jeremiah Taylor said Wednesday. "They believe a patrolwoman just can't hold up her end."

Taylor, who supervises the uniformed patrol force, said patrolwomen are "unable to perform physically like a male officer in physical encounters, making arrests where there is resistance, or lifting drunks."

Four women were assigned to prowling cars under an experimental program begun late last year.

"The purpose was to put them on the street to see if they could do police work there," said Eimil. He added that evaluation reports on three of the four women have been completed.

"They show — and the three women agree — that women officers can perform certain police functions just like men," he said. "But where strength was required, the women were the weaker sex and couldn't perform."

He said that, when one man and woman officer team came upon a drunk, "the woman officer physically was unable to assist the man officer in lifting him. So they had to call in for another radio car to help."

Policewomen must weigh at least 115 pounds and stand 5 feet 5, while policemen must be a minimum of 138 pounds and 5 feet 7.

Clausen Optimistic About Future Trade With Soviets

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — After three days of meetings with bank and government officials in Moscow, A. W. "Tom" Clausen, Bank of America president, is greatly encouraged about the future of trade with the Soviet Union.

Moreover, he said, he is optimistic about the prospects for world peace and higher living standards, which he believes are logical consequences of nations cooperating to supply needs rather than threatening and restraining.

Clausen led a delegation from the $41-billion San Francisco-based bank, the nation's largest financial institution, to the Soviet capital to discuss approaches to financing the expected trade surge between the countries.

While few specifics were nailed down during the late May sessions with Gosbank, the state bank; Gosplan, the state committee for planning; and various other institutions, Clausen was able to state unequivocally at a Moscow news conference:

"The private financial institutions of the West will facilitate financing on reasonable terms for any project or arrangement which is of mutual benefit. We are eager to take part."

In some respects, he noted, the economies of the Soviet Union and the United States are complementary. The United States needs energy and the Soviets have it. The Soviets need agricultural products, which the United States has.

'Sunshine Bill' Is Sent To Governor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Singing "You Are My Sunshine," the Missouri House stamped final legislative action on an open meeting bill, and sent it to the governor.

The so-called "sunshine bill" which would become law Sept. 28, was approved 149-4 in the House Thursday night about two hours after the Senate had given 30-0 approval to a joint conference committee report.

Voting no in the House were House Speaker Pro Tem Richard DeCoster, D-Canton, and Reps. Edna Eads, R-Bonne Terre, David Reed, R-Kansas City and Orchid Jordan, D-Kansas City.

The bill had progressed at a snail's pace in the House after being approved Feb. 14 by the Senate. The House approved an amended version Tuesday and a joint conference committee resolved the differences.

The Senate sponsor, Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, acknowledged that it should be called a public disclosure law since it also calls for closed meetings in certain specific instances. He called the bill a good compromise.

Cason said he was gratified that recording of roll call votes—removed by the House—was restored to the bill.

"That's something I've always been after," he said.

"It appears that Missouri is going to finally join other states that have opened the doors of government to the people and taxpayers, who should have the right to know how their legislators stand on issues that affect their pocketbooks and everyday lives," said Carl M. Wilson, director of the Citizens Lobby.

The lobby failed last summer in a petition drive to get a public vote on putting an open meetings amendment in the state Constitution.

All public bodies, from the legislature to the school boards and city councils, must keep their meetings open to the public. The bill still allows a governmental unit to take a voice vote. If a roll call is taken, it must be made available to the public.

Removed from the bill was a controversial clause in the Senate version allowing closed meetings for purposes of private discussion only.

The bill requires that governmental units give public notice to "special meetings, but not to regular meetings established by law, ordinance or regulation of the body."

There is no penalty for violation. The bill says a circuit court can issue an injunction to stop closed meetings.

The law would cover all public bodies with three or more elected or appointed members having rulemaking or "quasi-judicial" power.

Political caucuses would be exempt from the law. Also excluded would be jury deliberations, grand juries, juvenile court proceedings and court proceedings involving parole, probation, or meetings involving adoption, legitimacy or illegitimacy.

Also exempt would be meetings on litigation involving governmental bodies or hiring and

Railroad Damage From Collision Set At $700,000

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The Union Pacific Railroad sustained $700,000 damage from the truck-train collision in which a Kansas City couple was killed Monday night.

Four locomotives and 21 freight cars were derailed; cargo and trackage were damaged.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Crash Diets Are Hazardous

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am enclosing an article from the newspaper which seems to me really false and misleading, and possibly a harmful way to begin a diet. The "toxin" business sounds like nonsense, and the headache seems rather to be from lack of food. Perhaps this woman should be stopped from giving advice. What to you think?

Dear Reader — I do not approve of the do-it-yourself water fast idea. Any severe fasting should be done under medical supervision. Fasting works well in the hospital for weight loss but it can cause significant chemical changes in the body. Doing without food for prolonged periods of time can cause a simple "hunger headache."

As far as washing out large amounts of toxins from the body by being on a water fast, that is nonsense. If the normal body mechanisms are properly functioning and a person is drinking an adequate amount of fluids and eating a normal diet the body will eliminate all excess chemical waste products that are present that should be eliminated. Drinking additional water won't change that situation. Our body is not riddled with toxins as many people seem to think. Even the bowels are not a huge source of toxic chemicals that adversely affect our health. This latter notion is the basis for a lot of unnecessary laxative habits that actually lead to poor health in some individuals.

The only sensible way to lose weight and at the same time not jeopardize your health is to learn and use the proper principles of diet and nutrition combined with sensible physical activity regularly. Crash projects don't help and can be downright dangerous.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I read your column faithfully and I want to thank you so much for your article on the double sugars. I am a 56-year-old obese diabetic with rheumatoid arthritis and hardening of the arteries. I have three diverticuli and have had diarrhea for 40 years or more.

I can't tell you the money I've spent with doctors trying to clear up my diarrhea and no one ever came up with the cause and with your article I stopped milk and all milk products and for the first time in recent memory I now have solid stools. It is such a pleasure not to have cramps in my abdomen all the time and at night especially. I had told doctors how I ran to the bathroom but I honestly believe because I didn't lose weight they didn't believe me, that I would go eight times a day and was always hungry. I have eaten until I vomited and was still hungry. Now I know why, with the inability to absorb milk sugar acting as a chemical laxative. Anyway, I'm so much better. I can't thank you enough.

Dear Reader — Yes, there are many people who have digestive disturbances because they can't tolerate milk sugar. This has received a lot more attention in recent years. I didn't learn about it medical school or during my specialty training but only afterward. X rays of the digestive tract from stem to stern won't solve the problem and that is one reason why doctors sometimes fail to make the diagnosis. I believe unawareness of the problems that undigested milk can cause and the bad effects of too much coffee on the digestive tract are two of the most frequent unrecognized causes of indigestion. Your letter speaks eloquently for the problem, and how much benefit a person can really get by correcting the diet.

White House Is Hoping For SALT Breakthrough

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says the U.S.-Soviet summit will not produce a sweeping new arms-limitation agreement, but is hoping the two nations can achieve a breakthrough toward permanent nuclear curbs.

At a news conference Thursday, presidential assistant Henry A. Kissinger said flatly there "will not be an agreement on the substance" of strategic arms-limitation (SALT) negotiations during the week-long summit.

But Kissinger said he does expect extensive discussion "which might open the way to more harmonious, more compatible instructions" to U.S. and Soviet negotiators who are seeking in Geneva to reach permanent arms limitation accords.

The talks between President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, at the White House, at Camp David and in San Clemente, Calif., could bring a turning point in negotiations and accelerate the pace toward eventual agreement, Kissinger said.

At about the same time that Nixon's chief foreign-affairs adviser was holding his news conference, Brezhnev was holding an unprecedented meeting with American correspondents in Moscow.

The general chairman of the Soviet Communist party brushed aside suggestions that the Watergate scandal might influence his talks with Nixon, saying "it does not enter my mind to think of whether Mr. Nixon has lost or gained any influence because of the affair."

Brezhnev added "it would be completely indecent for me to refer to it" and said "my attitude toward Mr. Nixon is one of very great respect."

Brezhnev, returning a visit Nixon paid to the Soviet capital in May 1972, plans to arrive in the United States Saturday and spend the rest of the weekend at Nixon's Camp David retreat in the Maryland mountains 75 miles northwest of Washington.

Monday he will be welcomed to the White House by Nixon and the two leaders will begin their talks. There will be a White House dinner Monday night and talks will continue Tuesday.

Then, Wednesday and Thursday, Nixon and Brezhnev will confer in the rustic seclusion of Camp David before attending a Thursday night dinner at the Soviet Embassy.

They will fly to the President's ocean-side estate in San Clemente Friday.

Addiction To Economic Controls Is Feared

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The dilemma of Nixonomics is summarized in the admonishment, "We must not let controls become a narcotic," delivered by a man who, more so than any recent president, has depended upon controls.

The executive order by Nixon means that the nation will have its second price freeze in less than two years. And when that is ended Aug. 12 it is to be followed by a third attempt since 1971 at controls of a lesser sort. This may not constitute addiction, but the President's several references to the dangers of a controlled economy, "which would lead us to economic disaster" suggest that he, himself, fears the very action he has taken.

He has demonstrated this previously, repeatedly expressing his philosophical distaste for controls, scolding those who advocated them, indicating that he thought such measures weak and expedient. ... and then succumbing, still struggling against the weakness, forced to admit that if life were to be tolerable it might be necessary and even permissible — just this once — to lean on a crutch.

Many economists who consider themselves conservative and establishment have long ago rid themselves of their hangups about some form of mild controls or central direction, believing that a really free economy is only an ideal.

But the ideal seems to have persisted in the administration despite some of the most disquieting economic news received by a president since the 1930 depression: inflation, joblessness, devaluation, stock market recession ...

The publicly stated ideal, continually contradicted by the deed, was adhered to despite this news, and few economists in the New York corporate world believed the President would permit another freeze.

In the week before Nixon acted, this was the typical comment, as expressed by a large economic consulting firm:

"The range of possibilities is wide. It could be as extreme as Phase 1 or as mild as selective tightening here and there. Something in the middle — akin to Phase 2 — seems the most probable."

But most of these economists drive down the middle of the road anyway, fearful of crossing the white line or so prone to habit that they would feel uncomfortable doing so. But they underestimated Nixon's flexibility.

The fact is that the President has picked and chosen from various economic attitudes and philosophies if he thought they might work, even as in the case of controls, for a short period.

The record of the past few years has been a conglomerate of all shades of opinion from full free enterprise to harsh, and some even think dictatorial, controls.

Nevertheless, and judging from the public utterances of men such as George P. Shultz and Herbert Stein, the administration believes it has been doing a very good job of it.

Shultz, the Treasury secretary and chairman of the Cost of Living Council, insisted that Phase 3 was working, even though prices were spiraling upward at the fastest rates in two decades.

And Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, has demonstrated that he is a modern Dr. Pangloss, a character of Voltaire whose incurable optimism led him to conclude: "All is for the best in this best of all possible worlds."

For close to 18 months, the record shows, Stein has interpreted the cost of living figures to indicate that inflation was coming under control, that the awful price statistics really told a tale of hope that the public didn't recognize.

Maybe that explains the need for a narcotic.

Federal Authorities Now Holding Alleged Murderer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An Illinois man who had been freed by county officials in a jurisdictional dispute was being held by federal authorities Thursday to face a murder charge.

Raymond Shoultz, 28, of Waukegan was taken into custody by federal marshals Thursday at Hillsboro, Mo., and taken to St. Louis, where he was held pending the arrival of a warrant from the U. S. attorney in Chicago.

Shoultz is charged in the shooting death of Richard J. Glancey, 19, of Greenfield, Wis., whose body was discovered May 22 in a remote area west of Ironton, Mo. He had been charged originally in an Iron County warrant, but it was discovered later that Glancey was killed at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station near Chicago, where he was a dental technician.

Prosecuting Atty. Frank Mack of Iron County said he presented evidence last week on the case to the U.S. attorney's office in Chicago, because the federal government has jurisdiction over crimes committed on federal reservations.

Mack said the government failed to issue a warrant and he set Shoultz free Wednesday. He said that he was advised several hours later that a federal warrant had been issued in Chicago.

"We had to have full corroboration that federal property was involved and it took us that long to obtain it," D. Arthur Connelly of the U.S. attorney's office in Chicago said in explaining the delay.

"However, we informed Mack earlier Wednesday that a federal warrant was being issued and he still had Shoultz in custody at that time. Why he released him then, I don't know," Connelly said.

Mack said he called Connelly last week and "begged him to issue a warrant and got no cooperation ... They are trying to protect their own rear," he said.

Shoultz surrendered to Jefferson County authorities shortly before midnight Wednesday after the federal warrants were issued in Chicago.

The U.S. magistrate's office in St. Louis said the federal warrant was mailed from Chicago Thursday.

Robert Bitts delights in seeing his son, six-month-old Reuben, as his wife, Martha, looks on happily. Bitts, who had been nearly blind since an accident 17 years ago, had his vision

Representative Resolve Not To Use Country Club

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A black legislator told the Missouri House Thursday he was turned away from Meadow Lake Acres Country Club north of here, and the House passed his resolution asking other representatives not to use the club.

The resolution, passed 86-28, says the club should not be frequented until it defines its policy on admittance of blacks.

Rep. Phillip Curll, a Kansas City Democrat, said he went to the club with other lawmakers, who were white. They were to meet a lobbyist who in turn would have a club member allow them to play golf as guests.

Curll said they were told the lobbyist was not present, although he was on another part of the premises. Later, the lobbyist was told not to bring blacks out anymore, Curll said.

Guy Howser, president of the club, said there was no restriction against blacks, that any visitor would have to be accompanied by a club member "in good standing" before being allowed to use the facilities.

Howser said he thought Curll "knew what the policy was. I don't know how he could call it discrimination."

"We feel we have not done anything wrong," Howser said. He said he knew nothing about the alleged comment that blacks were not wanted.

Rep. James Strong, D-Kansas

City, tried to prevent Curll from bringing his motion to the floor, but Strong's motion was defeated.

"We shouldn't judge the community by the words of one uncouth paid employee," Strong said.

Curll said he and Strong tried to resolve the matter through discussions with Meadow Lake officials, but the communications broke down. He said if the club had only stated what its policies were he probably would not have introduced the resolution.

Dairy Official Says Freeze May Cause Shortage of Milk

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A major dairy official says President Nixon's new price freeze could cause a milk shortage if processors can't pass on milk price increases.

James L. Reeves of Springfield, Mo., vice president for marketing and sales of Mid-American Dairymen, Inc., said he expected spot shortages if price increases are not allowed, and no shortages if they are.

"It's not going to be any big deal," Reeves said, "but there will be days when we are not going to meet the needs in some of these metropolitan areas. That's a situation that's never occurred before."

He's Afraid Truth Would Damage Him

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to the 16-year-old girl who ran across her father's divorce papers, and was crushed because her folks had never mentioned it, created havoc in our marriage. You said, "Children have the right to know about previous marriages of their parents." My husband is a basket case over your statement. I have been telling him the same thing for years, but he refused to accept it.

We recently celebrated our 30th wedding anniversary and our life together has been wonderful. Our children were never told about his first wife. Many times I suggested that he inform the children, but he was afraid it would damage him in their eyes.

Recently our son went through a divorce and is suffering a great deal because of it. I felt it would help him to know that his father went through a similar ordeal at the same age, that he recovered completely, and later made a good marriage. My husband said, "No, it wouldn't help him and it would hurt me." Now your column comes along and he is beside himself. He needs to know WHY children should be told. Will you tell him? — Name Withheld

Dear N.W.: Children should be told of the previous marriages of their parents for the same reason they should be told that they are adopted. It protects them against the traumatic experience of hearing it from an outsider. The feeling of betrayal can create lifelong psychological problems and it's not worth the chance. In your husband's case, he is lucky no one has beat him to it. Now would be the ideal time to come forward with the truth.

Dear Ann Landers: I take sharp issue with the person who wrote to say marijuana damages the memory. That statement is a lie.

I cannot remember how long ago I started to smoke dope but my memory is as good as, or better than, it ever was. No one ever mentions the nice things pot can do for a person. For example, it — oh well, I can't recall exactly what I was going to say, but it will come back to me in a little while and when it does I'll finish this letter.

Sorry I couldn't think of it but I'll try again tomorrow. — Panama Red

Dear Red: Several readers wrote along the same line, but your letter was the best. (P.S.: In case you forgot where you live, it's Edmonton, Alberta.)

Dear Ann Landers: You've printed several complaints from non-smokers who are resentful of smokers who light up with no concern whatever for others.

I find it odd that no one has written to you about smoking in elevators, which in my opinion is the height of selfishness. Every time I get into an elevator (about ten times a day, since I work for a firm that has offices all over the building) I encounter people smoking cigarettes, or worse yet, cigars.

This is not fair to those of us who have asthma and allergies (it's not easy to hold your breath for ten floors). It's also very hard on clothing. I've discovered holes in several skirts and dresses caused by elevator smokers. Can you think of a solution? — J. C. Of Cal.

Dear J.: Yes. There can and should be bold signs next to every elevator which read "POSITIVELY NO SMOKING."

'Can't Live A Lie'

Mrs. Julie Pearson, La Grange, Ill., whose Air Force husband has been missing in action for five and one-half years after being shot down in Laos, poses with Richard Adamson, a carpenter she's been living with since 1970. Since that time she has been with Adamson, their son (now 16 months old) and her own two sons. "Why should I keep this a secret?" she said. "I can't live a lie. And I'm very happy."

Polly's Pointers

Should Identify Treasured Photos

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Pictures, particularly family ones, are priceless and to be treasured by many for years to come but they lose their real interest if the names, dates and where taken is not written on the backs. When you take a picture do take time to jot down these things on the backs. The day will come when the photographs will not be recognized. I recently received a box of photographs from an elderly aunt who is in bad health and lives far away. There are no names and dates on any of them but I know some are members of my family but who, when and where I do not know and probably will never know. What a priceless treasure if I could just identify those people. — VELMA

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I have a very old piece of slate (black) that is carved in the shape of a book but it is very dull looking. How can I brighten the surface to make this piece more attractive so it can be put out for display? — JAYNE

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those who make disposable baby bottles. There is no way of knowing whether or not you are near the end of a roll unless the box is opened. Then it is still a guess. Why can't they put some mark on, say the 13th from the end, so a person would know right off there are only a dozen bottles left? — SANDY

DEAR POLLY — This is for Jean who wants to help her elderly neighbor remove ink spots from her pink rug. If the spots have not been washed since the accident, she could soak them with turpentine, let it stay on overnight and then wash out and rinse well. — EDITH

DEAR GIRLS — While turpentine should not harm fabrics there are so many new fibers in clothes and rugs that I would recommend ALWAYS test an inconspicuous spot first. Do remember that an old spot is far harder to remove than a fresh one. Also, be careful of fire when using turpentine. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When doing crewel work or needlepoint, the easiest way to thread your needle with wool is to cut a piece of heavy paper about 1½-inches long and ½-inch wide and fold it in half lengthwise. Then you have a needle threader that can be used over and over. Place the end of the yarn inside the fold and slip the paper through the needle's eye. — MARY ANN

Court Rules Dismissal Was Unfair

DENVER (AP) — The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed a lower court decision Thursday and ruled that a black assistant dean at the University of Kansas was dismissed unfairly.

Gary Dean Jackson appealed a summary judgment in favor of the university in U.S. District Court in Kansas.

Jackson graduated from the university in June 1970. He was appointed graduate assistant in the department of black studies for the summer session of 1970 and was named assistant to the dean of men for black students until June 30, 1971.

Jackson claimed he was dismissed July 27, 1970, in compliance with a directive of the state board of regents.

University officials claimed Jackson was fired because he bought about 27 boxes of ammunition and returned them to Lawrence to distribute. At the time—July of 1970—the areas was in an uproar over a shooting death.

Jackson claimed the dismissal "was to retaliate against him for his expressions of opinion, in the exercise of his freedom guaranteed by the First and Fourteenth Amendments" of the Constitution, according to Thursday's opinion.

The circuit court said Jackson did not receive a statement of charges against him to clarify grounds for dismissal. The court also ruled that he was not given a hearing to answer the charges.

"We are of the opinion that the case is not ripe for summary judgment and that important facts were not properly brought before the court," the judges said.

The opinion listed several questions that were not answered in earlier proceedings, such as exactly why Jackson was dismissed.

The case was reversed and remanded to the lower court with instructions to set aside the earlier judgment.

'Lifestyle' Changes Urged By Minister

People should work to break down the walls that make men "captive" to their jobs, the things they own and the roles they play, Sedalia Kiwanians were told Thursday.

The Rev. Allen Pruitt, the Methodist chaplain in Campus Ministries at Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg, was the guest speaker.

Mr. Pruitt urged his audience to adopt new "lifestyles" patterned on the Gospels as a means of relating more to people.

Program chairman Bob Horton introduced the speaker.

Club guests were Philip McLaughlin, formerly of Sedalia and now of Tucson, Ariz., and Chuck Burgess of Warrensburg, a former Kiwanis lieutenant governor.

President Bob Fritz recognized Kiwanian Henry Keeler, who has been named probate judge and ex-officio magistrate of Moniteau County.

Tom Foster briefly traced his background in keeping with the Kiwanis "share your life" theme. Gene Clary led singing, accompanied by Jrs. Keith Maynard.

The Rev. Greg Hibbard gave the invocation.

Ozark Regional Commission Will Receive Funds

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — A Missouri official says the four-state Ozark Regional Commission has assurance of living at least another year.

President Nixon's proposed budget, announced early this year, cut the commission off with no funds.

Guy Jaffe, director of governmental services, said Thursday night he has learned the House and Senate will give the commission the same amount of money it had last year and the White House has agreed not to veto it.

Jaffe said Missouri's share will be about $1.8 million. The commission helps build vocational technical schools, hospitals and similar projects in Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa, in addition to Missouri.

Production of Ethyl Alcohol From Wheat Said 'Feasible'

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A farm cooperative spokesman says it appears that production of ethyl alcohol from wheat, which would replace lead in motor fuel, may be economically feasible.

George Voth Jr., general manager of Far-Mar-Co., Inc., of Hutchinson, said Thursday that this one use would consume over three billion bushels of wheat a year.

Voth said the use of grain alcohol to replace tetraethyl lead as an anti-knock agent in motor fuel has been technically feasible but until recently the economics of the process were not good.

Several months ago the cooperative announced it had made a breakthrough in wheat research which allows the fractionation of the wheat kernel without damaging its components.

"By modifying our objective and developing a unique process for fractionating the whole wheat kernel, it appears production of alcohol may be economically feasible," Voth's remarks were made before the summer conference of the Midwest Association of State Departments of Agriculture.

The Kansas Wheat Commission, meanwhile, issued a statement urging the use of wheat for alcohol.

"Now is the time for the country to take seriously to the wheat producers' proposal that grain alcohol be used as an additive to gasoline, replacing tetraethyl lead," said Ed Hawes, of Larned, a member of the Wheat Commission.

Rex Cozad, Norcatur, commission chairman, said statements on fuel shortages have placed the supply about 10 per cent below demand. He said the recommended proportions are 10 per cent alcohol in gasoline, which "should bring the supply up to demand as well as helping clean up the atmosphere."

He said the commission has underwritten research in cooperation with the Kansas Association of Wheat Growers and Far-Mar-Co.

Voth said several large companies have shown interest in becoming customers of products that would come from the new process.

A pilot plant is under construction, he said, for determining the feasibility of commercial production of gluten. He said the plant, costing an estimated $800,000, can process about 1,000 pounds of wheat an hour.

"Within a relative short time, it is hoped that it will be economically feasible to construct a commercial plant which will cost in the neighborhood of $10 million," he said.

Shultz Plans To Stay; Connally May Be Leaving

WASHINGTON (AP) — George P. Shultz plans to stay on as Treasury secretary despite losing another economic debate with President Nixon. But a frustrated John B. Connally apparently is leaving.

Connally's reasons go beyond the economic debate at the White House, however. The former Texas governor apparently was cut off from ready access to the President, and their once-close relationship has become strained.

As an unpaid, part-time adviser, Connally has not displayed the clout that he had while serving as secretary of the Treasury.

As for Shultz, Nixon rejected his advice for a milder approach and, on Wednesday night, froze prices for 60 days. Reports circulated immediately that the secretary, a staunch free-market advocate, was on the way out.

But a spokesman for Shultz explained: "He's a team player. You don't run off in a huff just because things don't go your way."

It was not the first time that Shultz had lost out in an intra-administration struggle over the economy.

The last time was in the summer of 1971 when the economy was sluggish, unemployment high and inflation strong. Shultz counseled against action, saying that things would work out if Nixon played it "steady as you go."

At that time, Shultz was director of the Office of Management and Budget. Nixon finally said no to Shultz's policies and turned to those of his Treasury secretary, Connally.

Shultz also was secretary of labor in Nixon's first administration. He remains the President's chief economic spokesman and as a White House aide in charge of all economic policy.

Connally, meantime, is said to have complained to friends that the White House operation was a "screwed-up mess" after Watergate-related resignations.

The White House said Connally soon will go on a 60-day trip around the world with his wife. Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren insisted Nixon and Connally have "a very close relationship." But there is growing speculation that Connally will not return to Washington when that trip ends.

Connally told The Associated Press in Houston Thursday that he and Nixon have no basic disagreements on the new economic program. And he said he has not reached a decision on when he will leave his White House post.

Connally signed on May 10, apparently with the understanding that it would be for 60 to 90 days.

Since returning to the White House, Connally associates say, he has had only two private audiences with Nixon.

House 'sunshine' bill far superior

The Missouri House has overwhelmingly passed an open meetings bill with some real teeth in it, and one that will assure public access to the proceedings of public bodies.

Passed by a vote of 152-4, the House bill is a substitute for Senate Bill No. 1, which also is termed a "sunshine" bill, but which has some serious shortcomings. The House bill is now in a joint conference committee in an attempt to iron out differences.

The main problem with the Senate bill is that it provides for closed meetings of public bodies for purposes of "discussion." This gaping loophole would actually be worse than having no bill at all, since it would authorize public servants to slam the door to the press and public at will.

Under the House bill, no such provision is included. Except for certain specified exceptions that the media have always acknowledged, all meetings of public bodies would be required to be open. Voting, by members, would be recorded.

Circuit courts would be authorized to enforce the law by means of injunctions, according to the House bill.

In all levels of government in Missouri there remain pockets of resistance where public servants convene behind closed doors. Sunshine laws are on the books in several states, and Missouri should have its version.

But let's have one that will do what it claims it will do, and not give the public a worthless piece of paper. In this regard the House bill seems far superior to the Senate version, something we hope the conference committee will recognize.

(The House version of the sunshine bill passed the Senate Thursday night, and now goes to Gov. Christopher Bond for signature. — Ed.)

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Speaking for the White House, trouble-shooter Frank Carlucci directed the Small Business Administration to disobey the law, which authorizes the agency to declare disaster areas and rush emergency aid to the victims.

In an incredible exchange between Small Business Administrator Tom Kleppe and Rep. Jim Hanley, D-N.Y., the uncomfortable Kleppe admitted he had been specifically ordered not to implement the law on disaster relief. Here are direct quotes:

Hanley: "And who took the authority away?"

Kleppe: "I had the choice of disobeying the law or disobeying my President."

Hanley: "But the authority remains in the law?"

Kleppe: "I think that's correct, in the new law."

Hanley: "Now I'm concerned when you tell me that as opposed to concurring with the law, you concurred with an Administrative mandate."

Kleppe: "What would you do?"

Hanley: "Concur with the law."

Kleppe: "Would you?"

Hanley: "I wouldn't break the law."

Kleppe: "Jim, I serve at the pleasure of the President."

Hanley: "As a matter of fact, the law has been broken."

Kleppe: "It is a true statement, Jim."

Kleppe acknowledged to us that Carlucci, before he moved from the White House to become undersecretary of health, education and welfare, telephoned him the order to disregard the law. Contrary to

Merry-go-round

SBA head ordered to disobey the law

what Kleppe told the congressman, however, the SBA chief insisted he hadn't really violated the law but merely had failed to implement it.

Carlucci told us he had made the phone call "to coordinate" federal disaster relief efforts and to curb "runaway expenditures." He indicated the decision was made at the highest domestic levels. Presumably, he meant John Ehrlichman, the President's former domestic counselor, who used to call the shots on such decisions. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz also participated in the decision, Carlucci said.

ITT Report: The Senate subcommittee which investigated ITT's intervention in Chilean politics is preparing a blistering report that will add to ITT's continuing problems. The subcommittee will also recommend legislation making it a criminal offense for ITT, or anyone else, to attempt to involve a U.S. agency in another nation's elections. It would also be against the proposed law for the CIA, or any other government agency, to intervene in a foreign election.

High Fees: David Maxwell, former general counsel to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, was instrumental last year in keeping title insurance fees high. He blocked a move to cut title insurance fees by 15 to 20 per cent, which would have brought them in line with title insurance losses. Maxwell has now left the government for a high-paying job as president of TICOR, a mortgage subsidiary of one of the nation's largest title insurance firms. A spokesman denied there was any link between Maxwell's new job and his favorable ruling at HUD.

Bone for Meany: In his latest effort to keep organized labor in his political corner, President Nixon has appointed a protégé of AFL-CIO President George Meany as consul-general in Naples, Italy. The appointment of Daniel L. Horowitz has raised indignant yelps from career diplomats at the State Department, some of whom wrote a rather undiplomatic letter to Rep. John Rooney, D-N.Y., in protest. Horowitz has been the State Department's liaison man with the labor movement, but he has no diplomatic experience. The AFL-CIO told us his appointment "wasn't at our behest."

Luxurious Layout: Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Caspar Weinberger, who has slashed funds for the poor, the ailing and the elderly, is building himself a luxurious new building. Besides his own offices, the building will house a sauna bath, plus handball and squash courts.

Word from Kalmbach: President Nixon's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, has confirmed to Watergate investigators our account of Martha Mitchell's altercation with her security guard at Newport Beach, Calif., last June 23. Kalmbach said he had been dispatched to the Newport Inn by ex-Attorney General John Mitchell, as we reported, to give aid and comfort to the agitated Martha. Kalmbach found her with a telephone ripped out of the wall, her dignity impaired by a forced tranquilizer shot and a slashed hand from a wild swing into a window pane.

Surviving in the stands

By DOUG KNEIBERT

If you've been to many Little League games, you know it can be a lot tougher on you in the stands than for your son on the field. If you don't watch yourself, your blood pressure can soon get out of hand.

For instance, suppose your son, Ricky (All Little Leaguers, you will find, are either named Ricky or Rusty), is coming up to bat. When the second strikes crosses the plate, a female voice from behind you shouts:

"Wake up out there Ricky — whatdaya want, it on a silver platter?"

At this point you should resist the temptation to shove this mother off the stands. A few discreet questions to those sitting around you will establish that HER son is Roger, the second baseman. Thus when he throws wild to third, allowing a run to come in, you can shout:

"Where ya' throwing it Roger? third base is THAT way."

Things can escalate rapidly in the stands. By the third inning, your kid has probably been insulted twice by Rusty's mother. Once you've established that Rusty is the catcher, you can holler: "CATCH the ball, Rusty — that's what you got a mit for!"

With the beginning of the fifth inning, you can have a really hostile stand, with mothers no longer watching the GAME, but only for errors. (By referring to mothers, instead of fathers, I am not being discriminatory; it's only that when it comes to hurling insults and snide remarks at Little League players, I'll take a mother over a father anytime.)

Admittedly, such a situation does not really add to your enjoyment of the game, despite appearances of some spectators. To solve the problem, here is a suggestion: Before the game starts, you poll the stands to find out which parents are NOT present. Then these players could be singled out for a barrage of criticism without fear of reprisal.

Then again, some people have suggested that Little League games might be made more enjoyable if parents would praise the kids, rather than criticize. But I doubt that such a strange idea will ever catch on.

Lament of the Week: What has happened to the automobile vent window? This marvelously practical feature enabled you to hang your arm out the window and have the post to grip; it deflected wind from hitting the driver and those in the back seat full in the face; and it could be turned all the way in on hot days when your shirt sticks to you like fly paper.

With air-conditioned cars now common, the vent window is going the way of the dodo bird. But for those energy-conscious few of us who are still driving cars without air conditioning, let the rallying cry be: Save the Vent Window! (And don't make it an option, either.)

I have come into possession of a gold Smith-Cotton class ring that was found in the parking lot of the Westview Restaurant in Warsaw. The ring, slightly the worse for being run over once or twice, looks like it still can be repaired. It can be claimed by the party that comes to my office and can answer certain questions regarding the ring's description.

Considering the price of gold today, if the ring is not claimed I will melt it down and flee to Costa Rica.

The public needs 'instant analysis' by CBS-TV

WASHINGTON — It may seem trifling, compared with a Watergate break-in or a spurt in the price of gold, but one of the most serious developments of the last few weeks was the recent CBS decision to forego "instant analysis."

Just when the press was beating off a strike at the jugular by those wonderful people who gave us Watergate, just when much of the public was beginning to understand that the First Amendment is part of THEIR protection against tyranny, and not some special privilege for reporters, CBS does a colossal cave-in.

It is beyond understanding or explanation that CBS would gag itself at a time when the public needs in the worst way media with the guts to challenge instantly and courageously top men in the executive branch who have grown too powerful and too inclined to confuse, where possible, and just plain lie, where necessary.

At issue is the basic question of whether the President shall be able to commandeer the radio and television networks and hand out whatever information, line, propaganda he chooses, without anyone on the networks to explain, challenge, dispute what he has said or claimed.

Spiro Agnew is against "instant analysis." Neither he nor anyone else in the administration wants a newsman coming on behind him to give the public facts which make the White House line "inoperative" even before it makes the morning headlines.

CBS has come up with a disingenuous cop-out where it proposes to let the "public" respond to major presidential statements, such response to come within a week.

Give the most blatant falsehood a week and it will make 20 trips around the world before the truth gets its boots on.

Americans don't wait a week to make their minds up about a presidential address. They swallow it hook, line, sinker and pole momentarily, or they become skeptical and offended immediately on the basis of knowledge that the White House isn't leveling with them.

The inescapable truth, however, is that not one citizen in a thousand is well enough informed on all the vital issues to know when the White House is using CBS or another network to flam-floozie him.

Take the economy. How many Americans, listening to a presidential speech on Phase IV, can determine immediately how much tougher it is than Phase III, or how it compares with Phase II, or what is in the new plan to placate AFL-CIO president George Meany, or how far it departs from previous Nixon vows about what he would or would not ever do in the way of wage and price controls?

For all our supposed high level of education, most Americans become easy victims of the clever White House speech writer, no matter which party is in power.

For all the thousands of headlines and the hours of television about the Watergate mess, not one American in 10,000 can match the players with the alleged crimes. The names of Magruder and Dean, Porter and Liddy, Mitchell and Stans, Kalmbach and Ehrlichman and Strachan, McCord and Caulfield, Odle and Reisner start to run together as just one massive Excedrin headache.

The overwhelmed citizen becomes a sucker for a clever presidential speech about Watergate unless there is some explanation, some clarification by newsmen whose business it is to know exactly where Magruder and Kalmbach and Dean fit into the maze of charges and allegations.

Without guts, "instant analysis," CBS will leave millions of viewers naked against a tidal wave of White House obfuscation, dissembling and just plain lying of the sort we have seen in such abundance recently.

Yet, CBS attributes to the esteemed commentator Eric Sevareid the view that analysis immediately following a presidential statement doesn't leave enough time for preparation and leads to "bad journalism."

The obvious answer is to leave the post-speech analysis to TV journalists who do their "preparation" every hour of every day and who thus don't need a week to figure out whether a President is trying to pull a bit of vicuna over the eyes of the people. The Dan Rathers and Robert Pierpoints and Marvin Kalbs have turned out some superb journalism by having the knowledge and the integrity to remind viewers that a presidential speech was inconsistent with previous utterances or known facts.

To deny viewers this kind of analysis is literally to turn the network over to whoever is in power just as effectively as though a President sent a battalion of Marines to take over the stations.

It is hard to imagine what led CBS to opt for what, barring some more rational explanation, must be described as cowardice. Let it be said that NBC and ABC have shown commendable loyalty to the principle that a free press analyzes what it feels it must WHEN it feels it must.

Unless CBS moves boldly to retrieve its self-respect and its soul, you can bet that the vultures will be out after NBC and ABC with ravenous relentlessness. If either network follows the CBS cop-out, you can pretty well forget about independent television in this country and accept the reality of government-controlled networks a la the Soviet Union and so many other countries around the world.

Escape from this kind of broadcast tyranny requires a CBS return to policies that guarantee analysis at any instant of any statement by anybody who appears to blind the American people to the truth.

An expert defending with an inexperienced partner is like a pilot flying blind in a fog with his navigational instruments inoperative. He has to rely on instinct.

When experts play together they have conventions that are likely to substitute certainty for guesswork.

West's king of spades is covered by North's ace and ruffed by East's deuce of trumps. The four of diamonds is returned. South's jack is covered by West's king and the trick won by dummy's ace.

A trump is led and West is in with the ace. He cashes the queen of spades. East discards a diamond and it is up to West to decide whether he should try to give his partner a ruff or a trick with the queen of diamonds that he may hold.

In the actual hand East has no more trumps and the diamond play is essential. West also knows that his partner has no more trumps because East ruffed the spade with the deuce and played the six-spot when trumps were led. Experts use a trump echo to show three. With a third trump he would have ruffed with the six and followed with the deuce.

Player's 67 Leads

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — "Be ware the sick man in golf." That adage, kicked around the big championships for years, was resurrected today at storied old Oakmont where contenders in the 73rd U. S. Open chased a phenomenal first-round 67 by Gary Player.

At the beginning of the week, the gutty little guy from Johannesburg, 14 pounds underweight and weak from a 40-day battle with two surgical operations, was so distressed over his golf game that he told intimates: "I am playing miserably. I can't get back my competitive edge. I wish I were home."

He stuck it out, however. He practiced for hours on end and on Wednesday, playing with Arnold Palmer on tournament eve, began to recover his renowned touch.

On Thursday, while most of the 150-man field fretted and fussed with the marble-fast greens, the 5-foot-8 South African played the course in four under par and took a three-stroke lead into today's second round.

A pair of other recent hospital cases were close behind him.

Former PGA champion Ray Floyd, who said an attack of the flu this spring knocked him out of the tour for two months, shot a 70 and was tied with Lee Trevino and Jim Colbert.

Gene Blittler, who underwent major cancer surgery 14 months ago, was one of the six players at even par 71.

Illnesses and injuries have become such a springboard to championship performances in the past that the subject has come up for psychological analysis.

"There is psychological soundness for it," one doctor said. "The player gets so concerned over his health that he fails to get up tight about his golf."

Olin Dutra won the 1934 Open while so ill with dysentery he thought he might be forced to withdraw. In 1941, Craig Wood snapped a muscle in his neck picking up a dropped razor blade. He had to sleep on a board, but he won the Open.

Babe Didrikson Zaharias won the women's U.S. Open at Salem, Mass., in 1954 while battling a fatal cancer, and the great Ben Hogan came back from a near-fatal automobile accident and won the 1950 Open on shattered legs. He went on to win two other Opens, the Masters and British Open.

Marilynn Smith Feels Male Golfers Superior to Women

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Marilynn Smith, the new lady broadcaster on the National Open golf team, is no fanatic on women's lib.

"The men do everything better in golf—why should we kid ourselves?" the blonde native of Wichita, Kan., said today.

"Some people insist that while we girls are not as powerful as the men we are better chippers and putters," she added. "It's not true. The men play better golf around the greens, too, because of their nature—they're more aggressive."

Miss Smith, 44, a veteran of the women's tour and former president of the Ladies' PGA, has been added to the American Broadcasting Company team which will work the last two days of the men's U. S. Open at the Oakmont Country Club here Saturday and Sunday.

The U.S. Open will be televised 4:30-6:30 p.m. EDT Saturday and 3:30-6:30 p.m. EDT Sunday.

She is the first of her sex to join the team of Chris Schenkel, Byron Nelson, Frank Gifford and company.

Marilynn said men were better golfers than women because they use the full shoulder and body turn, whereas women swing mostly with their arms.

"We have some girls on tour who are learning to use the shoulder turn—Betty Burnfeindt, Sandra Palmer and Jane Blalock, for example," Marilynn said. "But we're not ready to challenge the men. They're still too good."

NFLPA Blasts Analyses Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League Players Association termed outrageous a congressman's suggestion that professional athletes undergo urine analyses to determine if they have been using drugs illegally.

The comment came Thursday after it was disclosed that the House Commerce investigation subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., had recommended to the NFL that such a program be initiated.

"It is our position that the suggestion of urine analysis for professional athletes is an absolute outrage," said Ed Garvey, NFLPA executive director.

"No responsible body, including the Staggers committee, has even defined the problem, and yet everyone seems to be coming up with solutions."

The New York Times reported Tuesday that at least four professional football players were under investigation for trafficking in illegal drugs.

Garvey also said NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle has been invited to meet with the player representatives in Chicago July 23. Garvey said Rozelle would be asked at that time to explain a drug program he planned to present to team owners for approval on July 26.

Rozelle announced Wednesday he would recommend to the owners additional security guidelines, which he said are "going to go further than we have in the past."

He declined to make them public until after the meeting.

In a related action, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee, announced that his panel would open hearings Monday on the use of drugs by athletes, especially high school, collegiate and other amateurs.

Playboy Floyd Is Confident

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Can a playboy win the U.S. Open Golf Championship?

Ray Floyd admits he likes champagne and women. He accepts the playboy tag, although he thinks it's overrated. He also believes he can win the Open.

The 30-year-old Floyd, a good looking, brown-haired six-footer from Lake Havasu, Ariz., shot a one under par 70 in the first round of the Open over the Oakmont Country Club course Thursday. He trails leader Gary Player in this 73rd Open by three strokes.

Floyd was the early leader before Player chewed up the course. Immediately, his image as a swinger became the topic of conversation.

"Sure, I haven't lived the straight life, but I think the playboy thing is overrated," said Floyd. "When you're a bachelor you're seen different places with different girls, so right away everybody assumes you're a playboy. That's normal life for a bachelor."

Floyd, who might be considered in golf the same swinging type Bo Belinsky was to baseball, Joe Namath to pro football and Derek Sanderson to hockey, admits he hasn't got the dedication of a Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer or Gary Player.

"Winning isn't everything to me," says Floyd, who hasn't won a tournament since he captured the Professional Golf Association title in 1969. "There is more to life than golf. I'm just not going to sweat it."

Floyd doesn't want to leave the impression that he doesn't give his all when he competes. He simply doesn't take it home with him.

Montreal Winning Streak Reaches Six

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

The hottest team in baseball isn't leading its division...yet. But then, it's only June. Give the Montreal Expos some time.

The Expos stretched their winning streak to six games Thursday night with a 5-3 decision over San Diego, the coldest team in baseball. The victory kept Montreal a mere 4½ games back of Chicago in the National League's East Division.

That's because the Cubs remembered to win the only other NL game Thursday night, beating Houston 5-4. In the American League, Baltimore rallied for an 8-3 victory over Kansas City. California beat Boston 5-3 and Oakland blanked the New York Yankees 3-0.

The Expos have won nine of their 12 games this month and have taken a firm grip on second place in the NL East. They got six-hit pitching from Steve Renko against the Padres, who dropped their sixth straight game and ninth in the last 10. It was Renko's fifth victory, which is four more than he won all of last season.

Billy Williams delivered three runs for Chicago with a single and a home run, celebrating his 35th birthday and the Cubs defeated Houston for Ferguson Jenkins' seventh victory of the season.

"You have good years...lead the league in hitting...play in the all star game...be named rookie of the year...all of that," said Williams. "But what you really want is to play in a World Series. I'd trade all of this for that."

Baltimore roared from behind with seven runs in the eighth inning to wipe out a 3-1 Kansas City lead and defeat the Royals. Bobby Grich's leadoff triple started the rally and Paul Blair's bases-loaded triple put the Birds in charge for keeps.

John Mayberry homered for the Royals and Tommy Davis connected for the Orioles. Davis also had a pair of singles, extending his hitting streak to 16 games.

Frank Robinson and Ken Berry drove in two runs apiece in California's victory over Boston. Robinson had a two-run homer and Carl Yastrzemski accounted for all the Red Sox runs with his 11th homer.

Sal Bando and Reggie Jackson tagged consecutive pitch homers, moving Oakland past the New York Yankees. Dave Hamilton scattered seven hits and earned his first major league shutout with last-out help from Rolie Fingers.

Littell Debut Spoiled

O's Get to KC Firemen, 8-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City Royals blew another lead. The St. Louis Cardinals were idle.

The Royals, ahead 3-1 going into the last of the eighth inning, lost to the Baltimore Orioles Thursday night 8-3. The Orioles poured seven runs across in the last of the eighth on six hits and four walks.

A bases-loaded triple by Paul Blair was the key blow in the Orioles' outburst. Mark Littell, a rookie called up from Omaha earlier in the week, made his major league debut for the Royals and scattered seven hits, allowed one run, walked two and struck out two in 6 1-3 innings.

The Royals got their first run in the second on John Mayberry's 15th home run of the season. Tommy Davis tied the game at 1-1 with his home run in the last of the same inning.

Kansas City went ahead again on Lou Piniella's two-out double in the fourth, scoring Ed Kirkpatrick. Rookie Frank White singled for the Royals in the eighth, stole second and scored on a double by Amos Otis.

Gene Garber, 5-4, was the loser.

The Royals move to Cleveland tonight and will call on Paul Splittorf, 9-3, to oppose the Indians' Dick Tidrow, 4-6. St. Louis invades Houston with Alan Foster, 4-3, pitching for the Cards, and Dave Roberts, 6-3, for the Astros.

American Tennis Stars Back Wimbledon Boycott

LONDON (AP) — At least 21 American tennis stars are ready to boycott Wimbledon unless a British high court judge overrules the suspension of Yugoslav's Nikki Pilic and declares him eligible to play.

The handsome 33-year-old Pilic was the center of the biggest storm this tournament has known in its 96-year history. The International Lawn Tennis Federation suspended him because he didn't turn out for Yugoslavia in a Davis Cup match.

Pilic sought an injunction today in the high court to restrain the ILTF and the All England Club, which runs Wimbledon, from banning him.

The Association of Tennis Professionals claimed 64 of its 97 members have signed a petition saying they would not play Wimbledon unless Pilic is allowed to compete.

If Pilic's legal action fails, it appears the fans will not see Stan Smith, the big U.S. Davis Cup star, defend his Wimbledon title.

"Stan was one of the first to sign," said Jack Kramer, ATP executive director.

Cliff Drysdale, ATP president, said all the rest of the U.S. Davis Cup team has signed the petition—Tom Gorman, Harold Solomon, Erik Van Dillen and Dick Stockton.

Kramer said Dennis Ralston, U.S. Davis Cup captain, and Marty Riessen are waiting to hear the result of Pilic's case before flying to Britain to compete at Queen's Club next week and Wimbledon the week after.

Olivares Listed As 10-8 Favorite

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Ruben Olivares, the former world bantamweight boxing champion, was listed a 10-8 favorite Thursday for his June 23 fight against undefeated Bobby Chacon at the Forum.

Olivares, from Mexico City and now a featherweight, has scored 64 knockouts in 73 bouts while the 21-year-old Chacon from San Fernando, Calif., has 19 straight triumphs without defeat.

Lack of Athletes Forces Many Cancellations

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Steve Williams, Chuck LaBenz and Steve Prefontaine kicked off the 85th AAU men's track championships in impressive style but otherwise the first of three days of competition was unexpectedly bland.

Few showed up to see what never happened as 10 of the 15 scheduled events were canceled—mostly because not enough athletes showed up for the competition Thursday night.

The 24-year-old LaBenz was the biggest surprise of the evening, winning his heat of the mile trials in 4:04.0, his fastest time in two years. He was last in the field of 11 with 300 yards to go before racing home ahead of Mark Feig of Oregon.

"I knew six qualified for the finals but when I came off the last turn I felt so good I just kept moving," said the former Arizona State runner who has a best of 3:50.9 before being struck by a series of injuries.

Williams, a tall, lanky dashman who equalled the world 100 yard record of 9.1 earlier this year, led 16 qualifiers into today's semifinals of the 100 by clocking 9.4 into a strong headwind.

Prefontaine, Oregon's distance ace, breezed home in his heat of the three mile trials, clocking 13:17.8.

However, lack of competition in nine events forced officials to move those who did show up automatically into finals.

In a tenth event—the pole vault—swirling winds caused so much havoc that officials called off qualifying and moved all 19 vaulters into Saturday finals.

Columbia Teams Post Narrow Wins

Rain washed out half of the Central Missouri Ban Johnson League schedule Thursday night.

In the two games that were played, the Columbia Angels made it six in a row by edging Jefferson City, 2-1. The Angels crosstown rival, the Skaggs, also won by a narrow, one-run margin, 9-8, over Centralia.

The balance of the slate was rained out. Those games included Tipton at California and Boonville at Marshall.

Sedalia swings back into action Saturday afternoon at Huntsville. Jefferson City visits the Angels Saturday night in the day's only other CMBJ match-up.

A full slate of games is scheduled Sunday, including one in Columbia where the Sedalia Merchants visits the Angels at 8 p.m. Sunday's other games find California at Huntsville, Tipton at Jefferson City, Columbia Skaggs at Boonville and Marshall at Centralia.

Harris Retires

From Stampeders

CALGARY (AP) — Wayne Harris, 35, announced his retirement after 12 seasons with the Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League.

Harris, a middle linebacker, was named the CFL's lineman of the year four times. He suffered a back injury during the 1972 season, and doctors advised him not to play again.

'Very Bad Joke'

Ali Scoffs at Report Of Murder Contract

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali scoffs at reports a murder contract has been issued on him and says the only contract he knows of is the pact for his return bout with Ken Norton.

"No one is after me and I'm not hiding," said the former heavyweight champion at a news conference Thursday at the office of his attorney, Robert Arum.

Ali rejected newspaper reports his life was in danger because of what he possibly knows about the death of Maj. Benjamin Coxson.

Coxson, who had a record of 17 arrests and 10 convictions for fraud and larceny and lived in luxurious style with no visible means of support, was murdered in his Cherry Hill, N.J., home before dawn last Friday. Ali has a home nearby.

The Philadelphia Inquirer reported Wednesday that an unnamed source said Ali's death may be sought because of knowledge he may have about drug trafficking.

"It's vicious and not just for the press to put out a story there's a contract out for me. It's a bad contract. I have a contract to fight Ken Norton."

Norton broke Ali's jaw en route to a 12-round decision March 31 and the two will meet again Sept. 10 in San Diego.

Softball Hurler Robs Bank To Get Pitching Job

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Kurt "Meatball" Hardendorf told a U.S. magistrate he robbed the Third National Bank because he knew his softball team needed him.

As he was being arraigned on a bank robbery charge in connection with the Tuesday holdup, Hardendorf said the pitcher on the softball team at the federal mental hospital in Springfield, Mo., is nearing 60 and he thought he would go back and take over the spot.

Hardendorf was sent to the facility in 1966 after he robbed the Gem City Savings and Loan Association here.

Magistrate Roger Makley set bond for Hardendorf at $50,000.

Congressmen Reluctant To Discuss Impeachment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most members of Congress are reluctant to even discuss the possibility of impeachment proceedings against President Nixon over the Watergate scandal.

Fewer than a dozen House members participated in a discussion Tuesday on a proposal to study whether grounds for impeachment exist. Even those who favored the study, proposed by Rep. Bella Abzug, said they are opposed at this time to any impeachment move.

"I realize there is a reluctance to face the impeachment issue," Rep. Abzug said in the floor debate.

"However," the New York Democrat added, "I do not believe the House should shrink from a process authorized by the Constitution as a method of protecting our democracy simply because it cannot be certain of the outcome or because it finds the process itself distasteful."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., one of the first Republicans to warn of the impact of the scandal, said "only the more irresponsible members of the House are talking about" impeachment. He said the lengthy process could have a dire impact on the nation.

"If this only went on for three or four months," he said in an interview, "it could ruin this country."

In history's only instance of presidential impeachment, the Senate voted 105 years ago, 35 to 19, to convict President Andrew Johnson. That was one vote short of the needed two-thirds.

Senators have proven even more reluctant than House members to discuss impeachment.

"I haven't heard a senator say anything concrete about it at all," said Goldwater, who suggested earlier that there would be an impeachment proceeding if there were conclusive proof of President Nixon's involvement in the Watergate affair. He said he did not believe there would be such evidence.

Besides impeachment, there have been suggestions that Nixon resign.

Several Democrats, including former Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford and Reps. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., and Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., suggested that both Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew resign.

The White House said Nixon intends to continue as President and he has moved in the past 10 days to shore up his administration.

Magruder Says His Sense Of Lawfulness Undermined

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jeb Stuart Magruder says his sense of lawfulness was undermined when he was helping to plan the Watergate wiretapping because some antiwar activists, including people he knew, were breaking the law.

The former Nixon campaign deputy testified Thursday that he also feared attacks on the Republican nominating convention by radical groups, knew of death threats against Martha Mitchell, and believed some Democrats had planted spies inside the Nixon campaign, "doing to us, in effect, what we were doing to them."

"That again doesn't make it right. But we were fearful ..."

Watergate committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said this "atmosphere of fear" reminded him of the days in the 1950s when Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis., was hunting Communists in government.

And the Republican leader of the committee, Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said, "There are countless clichés that come to mind that I could use to try to describe that state of mind or that attitude—fighting fire with fire, two wrongs don't make a right, and all the rest. But they seem inadequate."

"They certainly were, and I have no justification for them, nor will I make any today," Magruder replied.

At the time, Magruder said, he recalled "a feeling of resentment and frustration at being unable to deal with the issues on a legal basis."

This first arose at a time when Magruder was working inside the White House, when he believed President Nixon was doing all he could to bring the Vietnam war to an end. At the same time, Magruder felt that those who opposed Nixon's war policies were prolonging the war, and committing illegal acts.

Although no Democratic spies were found inside the Nixon campaign, Magruder said, spying was suspected at the time. There had been bombings of Nixon campaign centers outside Washington, continuing demonstrations outside the campaign headquarters, and evidence that demonstrations were planned for the Republican convention.

Believe Basic Need To Sell Will Keep Prices In Line

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The farmer's basic need to sell his product may keep unfrozen agricultural prices in line with frozen wholesale and retail prices, according to a number of food processors and merchants.

Some, however, have expressed concern that the 60-day freeze could keep some agricultural products off the supermarket shelves altogether.

President Nixon ordered the general price freeze Wednesday, but exempted raw agricultural products sold by farmers. The action led to some speculation that food processors and wholesalers would be caught in a squeeze—forced to pay higher prices for raw agricultural products but unable to raise their prices to retailers.

A number of processors and wholesalers expressed the opinion that, should the farmer attempt to sell his product for a price so high that they couldn't make a profit, the farmer might find himself without a buyer.

"We are going to take a long look at the situation, and if we can't make money on our products, then we are not going to produce," said Frank Montgomery, general manager of H.A. Johnson Co., a major Boston food processor.

"Last week we paid $10 a hundredweight for potatoes. This week we have to pay $13 and next week we will have to pay $15," said Bill Reust, vice president and division manager of Associated Grocers in Kansas City. "We can't pay more for them then we can sell them for. So it sounds like if this is going to be the way, then there just won't be any potatoes on the grocery shelves."

The Nixon administration has said that concurrent efforts to increase food supplies should tend to hold prices down and prevent higher prices for raw agricultural products. One method of fighting such a price rise announced by Nixon is a plan to put export controls on feed grains, which would hold down overseas exports and increase domestic supplies.

"Hopefully, the law of supply and demand will keep farm prices at a level equal to controlled prices," said Jack Zeller of Safeway's Dallas retail operation. "This is the intent of Nixon's actions and I believe that's how it will work."

A dissenting view was offered by Robert Toth, president of Filigree Foods, a New York City wholesaler. He said prices couldn't be held down unless farm prices were controlled. "Everybody in the food business is hoping to get some stabilization, but it has to start at the farm level," he said.

Polish Prohibition Movement Growing

WARSAW (AP) — There is a growing movement here to bring total prohibition to Poland, one of the heaviest vodka drinking countries in the world and currently suffering from a kingsize, national hangover.

The prohibitionists are being led by an eminent group of Polish psychiatrists and doctors who hope lawmakers will soon turn their "ban alcohol" demands into legislation.

The Alcoholism Research Institute in Warsaw says there are more than a million hardcore drinkers who are close to requiring medical aid in this nation of 33 million. In addition there are 400,000 alcoholics needing treatment.

Poland is a major producer of the world's best vodka, and the clear 45 per cent alcohol portion is certainly part of the everyday scene.

Most Poles toss it down in one glass-emptying gulp.

Walk into any restaurant, day or night, and you'll see a bottle of vodka instead of wine gracing most tables.

And in Polish homes it's as common as a loaf of bread.

Now Prof. Tadeusz Bilikiewicz, a psychiatrist working in the Baltic city of Gdansk and leader of the prohibitionists, hopes to reverse this trend.

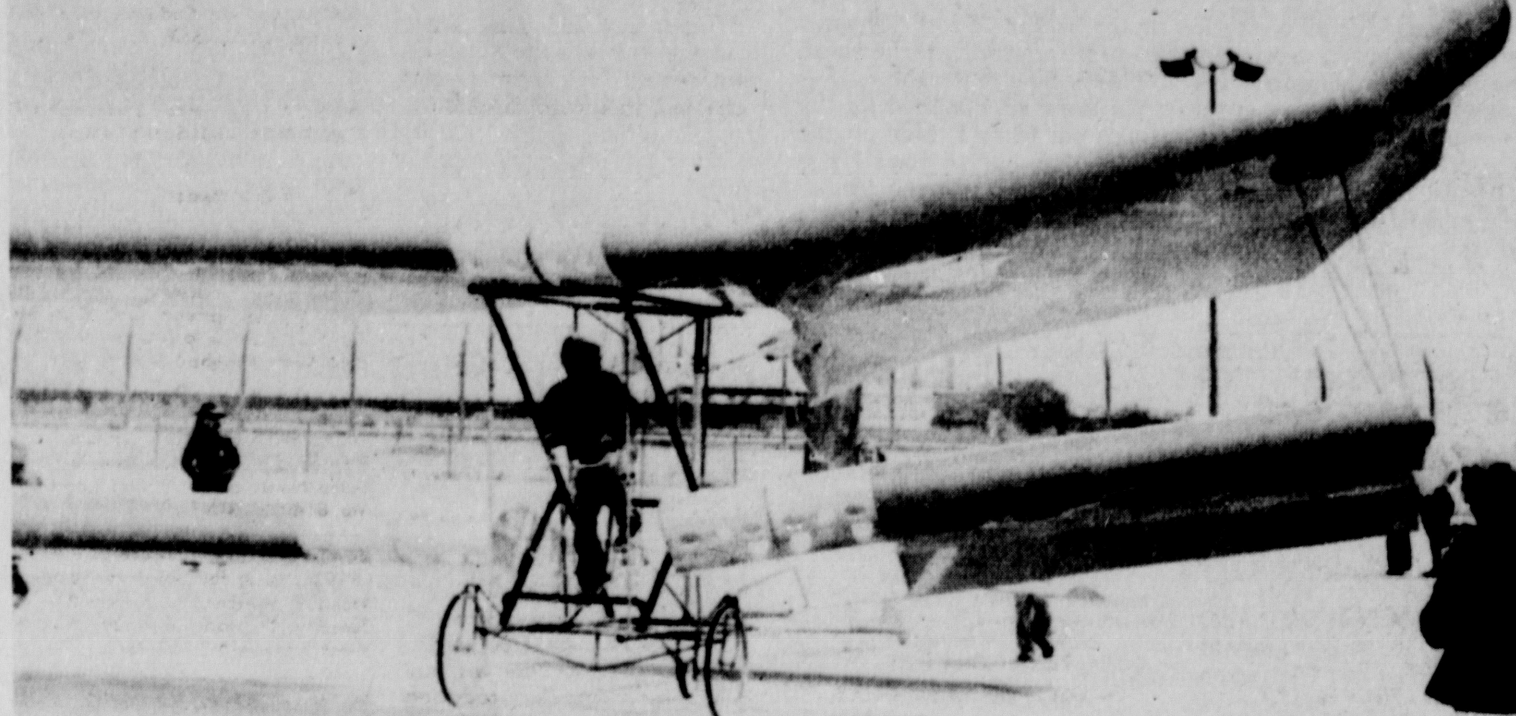

Backed by colleagues in his profession, Bilikiewicz has received wide publicity in state newspapers. But he appears to have more critics than supporters and many who oppose prohibition cite the massive problems that arose when America last tried it.

"I don't agree prohibition failed in the U.S.," Bilikiewicz said in an interview. "True, it caused a wave of crime, but the general public was cut off from alcohol.... The number of alcoholics admitted to mental institutions in the U.S. dwindled almost to zero and this was a great achievement."

"Frankly, prohibition would not be necessary in Poland if authorities fully utilized existing laws. But they don't, particularly in small localities where a policeman has problems running in friends or relatives."

Like the neighboring Soviet Union, Poland's drinking problems have been around for years. The ruling Communist party openly admits alcoholism is gravely hindering the country's economy because of the tens of thousands who absent themselves from work.

In 1971 Poles spent an equivalent of more than $2 billion on liquor, or $17 for each man, woman and child in this country, equal to 339 zlotys or nearly three times the daily wage in Poland.

Newsman Given Kremlin Tour

MOSCOW (AP) — Like a proud homeowner, Leonid I. Brezhnev took 11 American newsmen on a tour of his quarters Thursday in an effort to dispel "the mysterious unknown waiting above the Kremlin."

He said this was how the Western press often referred to the seat of supreme power in the Soviet Union.

Holding his first news conference as general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, Brezhnev summoned the reporters because of his June 18-26 summit meeting with President Nixon.

Brezhnev took the newsmen first into a large salon where the Politburo meets weekly, on into his private office and back through a false bookcase wall to a hideaway where he takes catnaps.

He gave some "insider information" on how he runs Politburo meetings, checked out his Kremlin inter-communications system while reporters watched and showed off pictures and other mementos.

Newsman got a glimpse of a small white spittoon near Brezhnev's desk, a bed in his private hideaway, a refrigerator and a well stocked medicine cabinet.

The three-hour meeting with newsmen was an obvious attempt by the bushy-browed, often forbidding Kremlin leader to cast himself in a new image as he prepares for his first trip to the United States.

Brezhnev even got into his family affairs—about which little is ever disclosed—saying his wife "is not too well, she's in bed."

He said she won't be accompanying him to the United States, and neither will his son. His son's boy, Brezhnev said, is coming up to exam time. He laughed and said, "You know what the feelings of a father are at a time like that, as if he could help by staying here with him."

Brezhnev, wearing a summer weight blue-gray suit and a blue and red tie, juggled pencils and a matchbox as he chatted—first tensely, then more easily—with the newsmen.

He puffed about one filter tipped cigarette every half-hour, a cutback from his chain-smoking days. He appeared fit, despite past rumors about bad health, but his eyes showed

Brezhnev Declares Respect For Nixon

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev said Thursday night he has profound respect for President Nixon "based on the fact that the President chose to take a realistic and constructive approach to the problem of improving relations between our two countries."

Brezhnev painted a picture of future massive economic links between the two great powers—trade involving basic resources and technology, and reaching far beyond "our buying five wagonloads of cardigans and our selling the United States five wagonloads of jackets."

After stressing that trade would have to be mutually advantageous, Brezhnev was asked about moves in Congress to withhold most-favored-nation tariff concessions from Soviet goods unless Moscow permits Jews to emigrate freely.

Irritated by the question, Brezhnev answered, "There is no Jewish problem in the Soviet Union.... We do not have any law in the Soviet Union forbidding them to leave ... if that departure is justified."

Brezhnev said 29,800 Jews left the Soviet Union last year and 11,380 have left in the first five months of 1973. This year's total might exceed the 1972 figure, he said.

They were invited to meet Brezhnev in connection with his first trip to the United States next week.

The 66-year-old Soviet leader voiced "very great respect" for Nixon, and declared the Watergate scandal will have no part in the forthcoming summit talks. He said it would be indecent for him to bring it up.

Without going into detail, he said his main business with

Nixon during the June 18-26 summit would be "an exchange of views on ways to deepen and improve relations between our two countries."

Brezhnev said 29,800 Jews left the Soviet Union last year and 11,380 have left in the first five months of 1973. This year's total might exceed the 1972 figure, he said.

Mediator's Proposal Is Rejected by Ozark

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Strike-bound Ozark Air Lines reportedly rejected a federal mediator's proposal late Thursday night to end the 58-day strike.

John Etherton, a member of the Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association negotiating team, said here early Friday.

No details were available on the proposal, presented during talks in Washington, but Etherton said the 560-member union had agreed to accept it. Ozark officials in St. Louis were not available for comment.

The reported rejection of the proposed settlement came on the heels of an announcement earlier Thursday that pilots would not fly a limited schedule beginning June 21 as proposed by the airline.

The Air Line Pilots Association, which represents 341 grounded Ozark pilots, served notice on the airline that it would not cross picket lines to resume limited flight service.

"All pilots will refuse to cross AMFA picket lines until further notice," Capt. John J. O'Donnell, association president, said in a letter to Ozark President Edward J. Crane.

Paul Rogers, a senior Ozark vice president, said the company was puzzled by the pilots' decision since the ALPA had said it was interested in providing a community service.

The air carrier had hoped to connect nine cities in Missouri and Illinois with the services of 21 senior pilots.

Etherton also said today that Ozark negotiators in Washington refused earlier this week to submit the wage question to binding arbitration. The union, he said, had agreed to submit wages as well as pension benefits, length of contract and the question of paid lunches for day-shift mechanics to binding arbitration.

According to Capt. James A. Echols, chairman of Ozark unit of the pilots association, the decision not to fly a limited schedule was based on concerns about the safety of limited flights and about the possibility of such an operation prolonging the strike.

Echols stressed, however, that the pilots' decision did not change their neutral stand in the dispute, and he noted that both sides have tried to use the association.

"We do not intend to be used by either side in this strike," he said. "The partial operation would not help end the strike."

Charges Of Murder Are Dropped

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Authorities released a man Thursday, who had been arrested in connection with the fatal shooting of the only prosecution witness to a robbery, after three police reports gave conflicting accounts of the witness's death statements.

The St. Louis circuit attorney's office said it could not issue a warrant charging Jesse Watson Jr., 50, based on the conflicting evidence.

Watson was arrested Wednesday in connection with the shooting of Ernest Green Sr., 68, who was the only witness to a robbery case involving Watson's son, police said. Armed robbery charges against the teen-age boy were dropped after Green's death.

According to one police report, Green stated that Watson was not the man who shot him after Watson appeared before the dying man in the hospital.

In a second version, Green is quoted as saying his assailant was a teen-age Negro male with a slim build, Watson, at 50, is stocky.

But a third report indicated Green said he was shot by a man he knew as the father of Jesse James Watson, the elder Watson's son.

The circuit attorney's office also cited conflicting reports from Green on what happened just before he was shot last Monday as reasons for not issuing a warrant.

In a second version, Green is quoted as saying his assailant was a teen-age Negro male with a slim build, Watson, at 50, is stocky.

But a third report indicated Green said he was shot by a man he knew as the father of Jesse James Watson, the elder Watson's son.

The circuit attorney's office also cited conflicting reports from Green on what happened just before he was shot last Monday as reasons for not issuing a warrant.

Watson was arrested Wednesday in connection with the shooting of Ernest Green Sr., 68, who was the only witness to a robbery case involving Watson's son, police said. Armed robbery charges against the teen-age boy were dropped after Green's death.

American Consumers Feel Pinch Of Higher-priced Foreign Goods

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second of two articles on the impact of the devaluation of the dollar.

By DEBORAH M. RANKIN, AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — While dollar devaluation shows signs of success abroad, American consumers are feeling the pinch of higher-priced foreign goods.

A survey shows prices of imported goods have gone up on everything from artichoke hearts to automobiles as a result of the 10 per cent devaluation in February.

"Right now devaluation is correctly perceived as a negative thing because it's a major factor in the horrendous inflation we have," said William Wolman, an economist with Argus Research Corp.

The aim of devaluation was to reduce this country's $6.8-billion trade deficit — the difference between our imports and exports — by lessening the value of the dollar against other currencies.

The idea was to increase American exports by making them less costly and thus more competitive overseas, and to slow imports by making them more expensive in the U.S. market. That was the same idea behind the first devaluation in 1971.

The time lag between adoption of such a program and observable effects is generally six months to two years. It's expected that consumers will feel the impact of higher-priced imports almost immediately, but positive effects such as higher employment that arise from boosting exports sometimes take longer.

"In their role as consumers, Americans have been hurt by devaluation," said Wolman. "But they're going to benefit in their role as wage earners, although it will probably take until next year before this becomes apparent."

Government figures suggest the devaluation program is finally working, at least as far as the nation as a whole is concerned. The United States achieved its first trade surplus in 1½ years during April, with merchandise exports exceeding imports by a seasonally adjusted $196.3 million.

Some economists dismiss the April figures as illusory and say much of the gain was due to the increased dollar value of major export items such as chemicals, rather than increased sales volume.

Some observers maintain steeper price tags won't deter a large segment of the purchasing public.

"Highly affluent buyers with discriminating taste aren't going to be diverted from what they want," said Arthur Freedman, professor at the Wharton School of Finance. "They'll still purchase Jaguars, caviar, French wine and audio equipment, even if they do cost more."

Economists speculate however, that devaluation will hurt sales of passenger cars, this country's principal import item with a total value of some $5.7 billion.

The foreign car manufacturers say it's too early to predict the outcome because many dealers are still selling cars in inventory at their old prices.

Sales are up right now, reflecting the big rush by buyers to beat devaluation price increases, but German and Japanese car makers expect 1973 volume to only equal 1972 levels.

Even a drop in passenger car imports, while helpful to Detroit, appears likely to be counterbalanced by the nation's increasing need for foreign fuel.

Petroleum and its byproducts, with a value of $4.3 billion, are this country's biggest import item. "They're going to be a basic problem in correcting our balance of payments," said one economist.

Electronic products are another area where devaluation could hit hard. Most merchandise comes from Japan where upward revaluation of the yen made export prices climb even more steeply than other places.

Food and drink is another area where consumers will feel a pinch.

"Prices have gone up on everything from anchovies to nuts," said David Jawitz, president of Camerican International, a processed food importer. The increases range from 3-4 per cent on some staples to 10 per cent on items such as tomatoes and pineapples, which have had poor worldwide yield.

"But we're selling a lot more cheese, perhaps because there's been so much publicity about how much meat costs these days," said part owner Larry Klein.

Wine prices have risen sharply too. Schieffelin, a major importer, says costs have risen 10-30 per cent with the biggest jumps in some premium French and German wines where demand is great but the crop is small.

But there are some relative bargains, including Scotch whisky, Polish vodka, Jamaican rum and Spanish, Greek and Israeli wines. These items have gone up only a few cents a bottle at most because the producing countries revalued their currency at a smaller upward rate than Japan or the Common Market bloc.

Does It Hurt?

Someone with a very good sense of humor and a penchant for painting decided that the smashed-in side of a car at a Dallas wrecking yard was a perfect place to start his painting career. If the car could talk, the "ouch" would probably be an understatement. (UPI)

invites you to go to bat for recycling

Earn this Little League aluminum baseball bat by collecting aluminum cans!

This $9.95 value is yours when you bring 50 pounds of aluminum cans to a Stag recycling center.

Here's an even better reward for pitching in to recycling. Bring 50 pounds of aluminum cans—Stag's or anyone else's—to your Stag recycling center.

Ordinarily Stag pays you 10¢ a pound (about one half-cent a can) for the aluminum. Now you'll earn twice that in the form of an official aluminum baseball bat. (Of course, you can have the cash at 10¢ a pound, if you prefer.)

It's a great team project. Aluminum bats won't chip, splinter or break, so one bat serves an entire team.

Help clean up your neighborhood and get a jump on your summer sports fun. Go to bat for recycling. Offer for limited time only.

After Seven Years Horton Role Is a Living Experience

By JOAN CROSBY

BURBANK, Calif. — Edward Mallory was driving from his home in the western end of the San Fernando Valley to the NBC studios in Burbank one day recently, thinking that he would like to get back into acting seriously.

Then he laughed as he realized he was driving to the studios to portray Bill Horton in the NBC-TV serial, Days of Our Lives.

"It's just that after seven years playing Bill Horton is not so much an acting experience as it is a living experience," the actor said.

While Ed was not with the show when it first went on the air, he is, sort of, the original Bill Horton.

"Another actor had the part in the pilot during the show he disappeared and went off to medical school. When he returned, I was he," he says.

He has been voted best actor in daytime TV in a magazine reader's poll two years running, sharing honors this year with costar Bill Hayes.

How, after seven years in the same role, does he keep it fresh?

"By living day to day and being spontaneous. It's like life, only we get scripts two weeks ahead so we can predict what will happen to us in the next two weeks. You have a certain object — Bill's now is to claim his own son. The plot has me as an uncle to my son — but within that framework is the room for spontaneity."

Edward keeps busy at other projects. Someone who knows him says he always has at least one project going. Presently he is involved with his wife's benefit for International Orphans, Inc. (he's married to actress Joyce Bulifant). He is also president of Theater East, a workshop where he is more involved as a director than as an actor.

Finally, he has written and produced a training film for actors which will be distributed to schools and colleges here and abroad.

The film deals with the problems a stage actor has adjusting to film work. Robert Foxworth plays the actor. For cameos Mallory has rounded up such as Helen Hays, Henry Fonda, Shirley Knight Hopkins, Jean Stapleton, Vincent Price, Ronny Howard, Macdonald Carey and Janet MacLachlin. Roger Perry plays the director and Carl Betz is the guide.

His major problem, in filming this picture within a picture, was that every time actor Perry playing the director, yelled "Cut," the cameraman who was really filming the scene obeyed his instructions.

Affiliate Dinner Is Lavish

They introduced most of the network's stars at the CBS Affiliates dinner at the Century-Plaza. The biggest hand of all was given to Bobby Riggs, representing CBS Sports Spectacular — but it was mostly the men who were applauding.

They put on a lavish and lovely show at the dinner, a funny and nostalgic look at the old days of radio, called "The Big Broadcast." It was one of the most expensive shows of that sort ever staged — the orchestra alone — 25 pieces led by Mort Stevens — cost $18,000.

The show featured some great talent — songs by Joanie Sommers and Mel Torme, comedy by Alan Alda, Carl Reiner, McLean Stevenson, Harvey Korman and Rich Little and even a great moment when Buddy Ebsen came out and did his old tap dance routine.

Fortunately, somebody taped it and that's a good thing because it would be tragic if all that talent was gone forever and had never been recorded in such a show. CBS is now mulling over what to do with the tape but chances are it will be put out in an album.

Egypt has a surplus of electricity since the Aswan High Dam doubled the nation's power supply.

Claridge Isn't Acting, She Just Portrays Herself

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Shaaron Claridge is a tall, attractive redhead but it isn't her face that's her fortune — it's her voice. She's one of the key assets of Adam-12, NBC's high-rated police show. Shaaron is the radio voice of the police headquarters.

This is type-casting at its worst — or best. In real life, Shaaron Claridge is a civilian R.T.O. — Radio Telephone Operator — for the Los Angeles Police Department and has been for 13 years.

When Adam-12 was being put together, the producers came to the police station and taped most of the girls voices. They picked three to come to the studio and test, and Shaaron got the job.

Why girls? There are mostly girls in her line of work and she says it isn't because of their voices, either, but because they keep their cool.

"You have to be cool," she says. "The policemen yell back at me — they think I'm telling them what to do when I'm only relaying orders. Like when they ask for a Code 7 — that's a break so they can eat — and I have to say no, they blame me, but I'm just telling them what I'm told to tell them."

She says the turnover is high not because the girls get married and quit so much as that they can't stand the tension.

That now-famous code — "One Adam-12" — which she says a few times each week deserves an explanation. The word "one" means the particular division she is calling. "Adam" is the police code word for a radio-equipped car with two officers (if the car has only one man, it is "Lincoln"). And "12" refers to the particular sector in the division the car patrols.

She's the daughter of a retired airlines pilot, and she started out as a switchboard operator. She applied for a job with the Police Department and they gave her a test for R.T.O., before she even knew what that meant.

It's been a good life for her. She's married to a motorcycle officer named Frank Claridge, a veteran of 12 years on the force. The added income from her TV work helps. She loves the water, loves scuba-diving and sailing, and Frank picked the love up from her. They've bought a small sailboat they call 'Adam-12,' which they used to rent to Universal — it was the boat Robert Conrad used in his series, The D.A. They're planning on sailing around the world when they retire.

Her Adam-12 work has led to other similar assignments. Hers was the voice you heard in the movie, "The New Centurions," and she's done a few other jobs, too.

She says the voice she uses is hard to learn — it's a calculated monotone — but eventually becomes second nature. She says all she does is read what they hand her.

She has no ambitions to do any acting, in fact she's perfectly content where she is. About nine years ago, or so, she thought of becoming a policewoman.

Sesame Street Is Bilingual

Fernando Lamas is so intrigued with the bilingual version of Sesame Street which is being put together by PBS that he has volunteered to talk about the project on TV and in interviews.

"We are getting all kinds of calls from very important show business people who want to come and read. There is one fallacy about the show. That is that its purpose is to teach the Spanish-speaking child to speak English. The purpose of the show is also to teach the English-speaking child the language and culture of the Spanish-speaking countries. North Americans are inclined to forget that those born in South America can also say 'I am an American.'"

One segment of the show, devoted to the importance of learning a foreign language, shows how helpless an adult can be when he is in a country where he is unable to communicate with the natives.

"We may not change the world," Lamas says, "but we will spark interest."

Youthful Ideas Prevents Age From Becoming 'Hangup'

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD — He just celebrated his 75th birthday. He's making a very 1973-type black movie.

Two different guys? No, one. His name is Henry Hathaway. One of Hollywood's veterans, he's still young at heart and youthful in ideas.

"Sure, 'Hangup' is a black picture," he says. "It's a new picture. But it's the new things that keep you alive."

The way Hathaway looks at it he has to change with the times.

"If a man tries to make the same picture he did 40 years ago," he says, "he's in trouble."

But, in one important way, Hathaway hasn't changed. He is still against pornography in films.

"As soon as you make pornography," he says, "you're in the gutter and it's awful hard to get out. Some of the things around today are a disaster — they can only hurt the business."

He says he walks out of pictures with too much nudity or language that is too abusive. "Hangup" will be R-rated "but not because of pornography."

He's enthusiastic about Bill Elliott, the black actor who stars for him. He says that finding new talent is exciting — "that's what keeps you young," he says.

Something must be doing it.

Michael Blankfort is one of those men who does a little of this in order that he can do a little of that.

This is screenwriting. That is novel writing, which he much prefers. He says he writes screenplays for a few years, then he can afford to go off and write a novel.

He has a new novel out, a little gem called "I Didn't Know I Would Live So Long." It took him a couple of years screenwriting to get the money so he could work on this book.

"Of course," he says, "the content of movies is changing now and movies are becoming a bit more attractive to writers of novels."

"But, in some ways, the Hollywood picture is deteriorating. In the old days, I worked a lot for the moguls — for men like Harry Cohn and Darryl Zanuck. If they read something you wrote and liked it, they'd say, 'OK, we'll do it,' and that was that."

ISADORA BENNETT RECEIVES DANCE AWARD

NEW YORK (AP) — Isadora Bennett, well-known dance press agent, was honored by receiving the annual Capezio Award "in recognition of her devoted services as publicist, friend and encourager to the dance world for over 30 years."

The award is given for long-range accomplishment in the field of dance.

At 15, Miss Bennett became one of the first female reporters when she went to work for the Chicago Daily News. She also acted in the touring company of her parents, Clarence and Catherine Marshall Bennett, and later married actor-director-playwright Daniel Reed. The two of them founded Town Theater in Columbia, S.C., the oldest U.S. community theater with a continuous history.

Miss Bennett has also been a reporter on the New York Daily News and she did theater publicity. In the late 1930s she began working for dance. Among the many dancers and companies she has handled have been Martha Graham, Sybil Shearer, John Butler, Jose Greco, Ballet Theater, Royal Danish Ballet and City Center Joffrey Ballet.

Henry Hathaway

somebody. There's no one person who has the ultimate word."

"I Didn't Know I Would Live So Long" is about an artist, his dying father and his living mistress. There's a picture deal in the works and Blankfort wants to write the screenplay on this property.

The leading part, Blankfort's protagonist, is a great role for an actor. He says that, among those already mentioned are George C. Scott, Gregory Peck and Paul Newman.

"Any of them would please me," Blankfort says. "As a matter of fact, I wouldn't mind all three of them in the same picture."

This is his eighth novel. He doesn't know exactly how many screenplays he's done. Now, if the pattern of the past holds up, he'll have to go back to screenwriting for a few years.

But it's possible the new book may break the tradition of years. It could be a big hit, in which case maybe he'll have to write a few novels to be able to afford to write a screenplay. Stranger things have happened. (Newspaper Enterprise Association)

GRAIN EXPORTS DROP

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Reduced grain exports from Texas ports are costing the state's grain industry millions of dollars, says John J. Seibert, grain marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The impact is already being felt throughout the total industry, from producer to handler, transporter and exporter," said Seibert.

Believes That Cable TV Is Inevitable

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Robert Colbert is another of the nighttime TV stars who has switched to daytime. His reasoning, in accepting the role he plays on CBS' soap opera, The Young and the Restless, is interesting.

"This show," he says, "will see me through the next three to five years."

That's how long he estimates it will take for the movie business to get back on its feet. By then, he figures, the whole film business will be changed.

"By 1976 or so," Colbert says, "pay-TV or cable-TV will have arrived and bail us out of the doldrums."

Colbert believes that the coming of pay-TV is both inevitable and essential. It is his contention that the pay-TV concept is the only way we'll get a quality product again. He believes a producer will be able to invest $5 to $10 million in a production and get it back in a one-night showing over a national pay-TV system.

"Today's audience," he says, "has been forced indoors by the high cost of taking the family to the movies. If a man wants to take his wife and kids to the movies today, by the time he gets a baby sitter, parks and buys the tickets, it's a $30 or $35 evening."

So the man who once starred on Time Tunnel is now gainfully employed as Stuart Brooks on The Young and the Restless. To his amazement, he likes it.

"At first," he says, "doing the show and memorizing all that dialogue seemed insurmountable. I looked at those first few scripts and said, 'There's no way I'm going to get all those words into my head.' But you stretch and you do it."

He is pleased with the quality of writing on the show and the actors he works with, he thinks, are great. So, all in all, he considers it a great way to kill those three-to-five years until what he expects to happen happens.

"This is good for me," he says. "I'm working with good people. The cast and the scripts compare favorably with other things I've done, even my last movie, 'The Lawyer.'"

The show enables him to continue with the good life he leads. He lives at Malibu with his wife and two children and he loves the beach and the sea. Every morning, he jogs a bit and his seven-year-old daughter, Cami, jogs along with him.

MacLachlan Predicted to be Next Black Female Star

Janet MacLachlan

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — One of the biggest topics of Hollywood party conversation is: Who is going to be the first black female star?

There are those who say Diana Ross is a shoo-in. There are others who support Cicely Tyson. And you can hear a few votes for beauties like Vonetta McGee and Pam Grier and Denise Nicholas.

More and more, though, the Janet MacLachlan boosters are being heard from. They say she has the beauty of a Ross or a McGee, plus the acting skill of a Tyson. They just may be right.

Janet played the school-teacher in "Sounder," and made the part come alive. Curiously, even though the picture was a big hit, the role did little to advance Janet's career.

"It hasn't brought me a flood of scripts," Janet says, "but I didn't expect it would. It wasn't that kind of part. It's only the flashy parts that lead to other things not the quiet, understated parts."

At the moment, she's doing another quiet, understated part. She's co-starring with Bernie Casey, Bo Svenson and Stephanie Edwards in "Maurie," the story of the fatal illness of basketball star Maurice Stokes, and Jack Twyman, his white teammate

Love Thy Neighbor is another adaptation of an English hit, from the big importing films, Yorkin-Lear. They're the men who brought over All In the Family, Sanford and Son and Maude.

Janet likes Love Thy Neighbor but she isn't a big fan of the other Yorkin-Lear imports.

"I loathe Archie Bunker," she says, "and I don't care much for Sanford and Son or Maude, either."

The problem for black actresses today, she says, is that Hollywood "is still stuck on the stereotypical black woman."

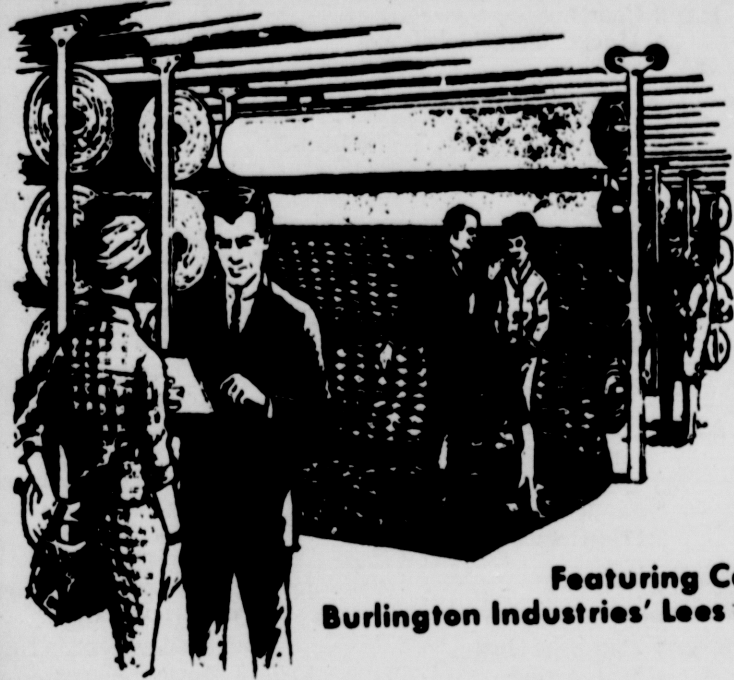

"That was true for black men for a long time, too," she says, "but they've gradually exhausted the black male stereotypes and are getting around to more realistic and meaningful roles for men. But not yet for women — it's still very tough to find a good role for a black actress."

Janet is a New York girl and was an executive secretary in a top New York public relations firm when she decided to try acting. Curiously, the role she's playing in "Maurie" is something like her real life role — the girl she plays in "Maurie" was employed by a publishing firm.

She started in off-Broadway plays, worked her way into New York TV and then came out here under contract to Universal — their first black girl given a contract.

It's been a long, steady climb. She's an actress with a solid grounding in her craft.

TV Scout Reports

When a very popular TV star (his long-running series just recently departed the airwaves) returns in his NEW series next season, he will look quite a bit younger. He has just had cosmetic surgery.

Victor Borge recently received a letter from Africa addressed, "Rock Cornish Hen, Connecticut." It was from a man interested in breeding information and was delivered to Borge even though he hasn't been in the Rock Cornish Hen breeding business for years. He obviously made an impact when he was, however.

Dick Cavett said he stopped a family from going to see what they thought was a Disney picture about giraffes. "It's called 'Deep Throat.'"

Kung Fu, which has been doing very well in recent ratings, is being turned into a series of paperback books by the Warner Paperback Library. The first book is a novelized form on the pilot movie which led to the series. The second book will have a study of the philosophy of kung fu.

The same company, Warner Paperback Library, is publishing the paperback edition of Ed McMahon's "Slimming Down," in case you only want to invest $1.50 to see how he lost all that weight.

Tommy Newsom, who conducts the orchestra for Johnny Carson when Doc Severinsen is off, attended William and Mary College in Virginia, graduated from Baltimore's prestigious Peabody Conservatory of Music and received a master's in music education from Columbia University. He's more than qualified as a substitute conductor.

Rumors continue to proliferate about the effect of the writers' strike. Latest is that, unless it is settled by June 1, most fall shows will be cancelled, or at least postponed. It will be too late, after that, to prepare scripts, sets and the rest of it for September premieres.

There is also the story around that Universal, the biggest TV manufacturer, may close down shortly to await the end of the strike.

Remember Will Hutchins? He used to star in his own series, Sugarfoot, and for several years was a major TV star. To show you how TV burns up talent, today Will Hutchins is a clown with a small circus.

Fortunately, he isn't doing it to make a living — he was smart and made some good investments while the big money was coming in. But there are no TV jobs for him today and he's clowning to keep busy. It's something he's always wanted to do.

Bob Hope performed recently for a USO show in Chicago, and told his audience again that he wouldn't be making his usual Christmas trip to entertain troops overseas.

"I'll be too busy," Hope said. "I'm booked to entertain the Watergate Wounded."

Robert Conrad, whose last work was the Assignment: Vienna series, has been hibernating at his place in Bear Valley in northern California. He's been up there so long the rumor got around that he didn't want to act any more — which is untrue. To squash that rumor, Bob has come back to town to show his face.

George Peppard will spend a few months this summer in Europe, mostly to visit his son, who is a student at the Sorbonne in Paris.

It isn't generally known, but Dean Martin had an ulcer operation at Midway Hospital — a few days before he married Cathy Hawn.

Brian Keith, the star of his Hawaii-based show, is another actor who has turned writer. Keith wrote a play called "The First Clown," based on his thoughts of what the opening night of "Hamlet" might have been like.

Everybody who is anybody wants to guest-star with Frank Sinatra when he does his return-to-showbiz special for Magnavox. They're all offering their services to Frank at reduced rates — but, so far, nobody has been signed to work with Frank on the November show.

When ABC had its turn in previewing the new TV season for members of the Television Academy, Grant Tinker, who heads the programs, got a big laugh by saying, "If the writer's strike continues, we — this tiny band — could be the only ones ever to see the 1973-74 season."

Grant says when he first met his wife, Mary Tyler Moore, she thought he was a bit of a stuffed-shirt. He's now on his way to being a stand-up comic.

Scenes from The Alpha Caper, a movie starring Henry Fonda, which ABC-TV will telecast on its new series of Saturday suspense films for TV really got the Academy audience buzzing. It promises to be a suspenseful, amusing crime caper with a lot of imagination and an ironic ending.

Elizabeth Baur of Ironside says she doesn't date actors. Most of them, she says, are so involved with themselves "that one might do better taking a glossy print of them, propping it up on the table and staring at it."

When Don Rickles substituted for Johnny Carson recently, he got warmed up for the stint by wandering around the NBC studios "insulting" everyone who crossed his path.

For the Department of I Didn't Know That: Terry Carter, a regular on McCloud, was a television newscaster in Boston at one time in his career.

Tim Conway is going the night club route, and one of the ladies in his act is cute Jackie Joseph, who is also Mrs. Ken Berry. They are playing Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas.

Rodney Dangerfield did more than give his time and services to those public service spots with Jackie Gleason which are on both radio and TV. Rodney also wrote them, paid for the filming and paid also for the hundreds of tapes which the National Conference of Christians and Jews sent around the country.

Dick Sargent, formerly of Bewitched, is doing "Charley's Aunt" on the summer stock circuit.

Maury Wills may have joined NBC as a sportscaster but the Dodgers are talking to him about a coaching job.

The ladies who like to look elegant showed up when Mr. Blackwell showed his back-to-the-30s fall line. Lee Meriwether, Lois Nettleton, Sandra Dee, Terry Moore and Deanna Lund (with her husband Don Matheson) were there along with Maureen Reagan, the daughter of Governor Ronald Reagan and Mrs. Sam Yorty, Los Angeles' first lady. Yup, the clothes were great.

A great line in Calucci's Department, one of CBS-TV's bright new series entries for the fall: "Democracy is a lot of people pulling together who hate each other's guts."

Female FBI agents will show up on the long-running series, The FBI, next season. Two of the first nine scripts feature women agents. Additionally, a new agent will be added to the cast, to work closely with Erskine (Efrem Zimbalist Jr.). Colby, played by William Reynolds, is being promoted to agent in charge of the Los Angeles office and he will be featured only in scripts which take place in L.A. There is a new producer: Tony Spinner.

Louis Nye, who will be a regular in the new NBC-TV series, Needles and Pins, got started in comedy while still in high school in his native Hartford, Conn. "I wasn't especially good at anything," he says, "so to establish myself I started doing dialects and funny walks."

Bet you didn't know Richard Boone was once a commercial fisherman. Now he fishes for pleasure around his St. Augustine, Fla., home.

Someone asked Dick Cavett if he was going to be doing any TV specials and he answered, "These days, it's a special if I get on at 11:30."

Victor Borge was a child prodigy. He says, "I gave concerts at 8. Sometimes at 8:30."

Flip Wilson says he has heard a spicy movie is finally playing at New York's staid Radio City Music Hall. "No one under 3 is allowed in without an adult."

The casting of Monte Markham in the lead in CBS' new Perry Mason series ends a talent search that was getting desperate. For some reason the two first choices — Craig Stevens and Howard Keel — turned it down. Now they still have to cast the other parts. At the moment, Jay Robinson is the leading candidate to play DA Hamilton Burger.

Newest twosome around town may surprise you — Andy Williams is seeing a lot of All In the Family's Sally Struthers.

Williams Has Apparently Crossed Color Lines

Billy Dee Williams

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — Billy Dee Williams may be the first black movie star to cut across color lines romantically.

Since "Brian's Song" and "Lady Sings the Blues," he's become a romantic figure to his fans and his fans apparently come in all colors. That's the way he wants it.

He's uninterested, he says, in racial issues — "nobody is ever going to get me to talk about black-and-white again" — and that philosophy carries over into his work.

He will no longer consider a role that is essentially a black role. From now on, he'll consider only parts which are undefined as to color.

He just finished a film called "Goodbye, Marseilles," which, he says, is the kind of part he wants. He plays a hero who could be any color. In fact, the role had originally been written for Steve McQueen.

"I don't think the black-white thing is relevant any more," he says. "I see signs that the world is coming around to my way of thinking about that, too."

So he's looking for these gray parts — a part that could be black or white — and he's in the fortunate position of being able to indulge his whim. Since "Lady Sings the Blues," he's become the hottest thing in town. He's turned down eight film offers lately and has several others which he's considering.

He and his advisers feel that he has a definite romantic appeal to women, regardless of color. He recently had an indication of just how strong that appeal is.

"I went to Las Vegas," he says, "to see Diana Ross and she introduced me to her audience. There was bedlam in the place. The ladies came running up to my booth — and most of them were white."

He feels that's great. He wants to be a romantic movie idol. He believes that a great love story on the screen would clean up today, and he'd like to be a part of it.

Actually, he's living a pretty good love story himself. He's married to a lovely Japanese girl named Teruko (that means "The Wind") and they just had their first child.

"Teruko and I," Billy Dee says, "lived together for two years and then we got married two years ago. The ceremony was a kick — neither of us were kids, we'd been married before. But we suddenly decided we wanted to get married. I guess because we're both products of conventional homes."

On April 24, their daughter was born. Her name is Hanako, which means "flower." Billy

Dee was in the delivery room to watch her being born and says it was one of the great experiences of his life.

"I wanted to go through her pain and her joy," he says, and he found that sharing of emotions mind-bending.

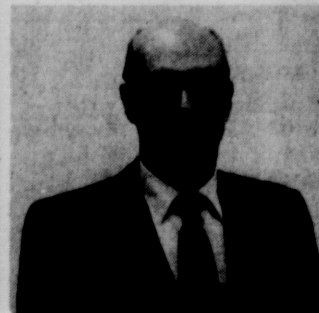

It's been a great few months for him, since "Lady Sings the Blues" came out, following his TV success on "Brian's Song." The two made him a big star.

He's excited about his present and future and believes his destiny is major stardom.

He says, if he wanted to, he could be busy every day and every night. He's being paged for benefits of all kinds and says he could do a benefit every night for the next two years — 730 of them.

The one thing he says he won't do any more is television. "No TV for me," he says. "I'm a movie star now."
